PREFACE.

THE compilation of the pedigrees in this, the second volume of the COLONIAL GENTRY, has proved a pleasant task to the Editor, and the result of his labours will, it is hoped, be found by the reader both useful to consult and interesting to peruse. It is surely unnecessary to dwell on the utility of a work which preserves in a convenient and permanent manner the records of the leading families in the Colonies, and serves to show to those at home and abroad the close bonds of kinship that unite the Sister Colonies to one another and to the Mother Country. All classes in these Colonies must entertain some interest in a work concerning their relations, friends, and neighbours. It was a happy thought of the late author to extend the area of his labours, which had already produced works found indispensable in every library, and to undertake the COLONIAL GENTRY at a time when it was still possible to collect full and reliable information concerning the origin and ancestry of the pioneers of colonisation in Her Majesty's more distant possessions. The subject cannot fail to attract the attention of the present generation and will be of absorbing interest to their descendants.

To every student of family history it will be pleasant to note that so many well-known and distinguished families at home have sent their younger sons to win their spurs in the Colonies and to add new lustre to the family renown. Many names suggest themselves in this connexion, but to instance a few, mentioned in this second volume, we find England represented by cadets of the houses of Onslow, Montagu, Wollaston, Rawson, Townshend, Clifford, Amherst, Cayley, and Weld; Scotland by Graham, Balfour, Chisholm, Campbell, Dennistoun, Græme, Macdonell, and Ogilvie; Ireland, by Martin, Hamilton, Wolfe, McCartney, D'Arcy, Blake, Orpen, Perceval, Aylmer, and Grey; and Wales, by Powys, Lloyd, and Williams; while such names as Sturt, Featherston, Learmonth, Youl, Grey, Duffy, Samuel, Jennings, Brodribb, de Labillière, Angas, Horrocks, Macdonald, Archer, and Ridout, cannot fail to interest every student of the history of Colonial enterprise and progress.

No labour has been spared on my part in the preparation of this volume; every source of information has been exhausted within the limits of time at my command, and a correspondence carried on which has secured many thousand communications from those most competent to improve and correct the pedigrees that have been compiled. My great aim has been to arrive at accuracy, but the time of no individual, however painstaking, would be sufficient for a work of this extent, were it to depend solely upon his own knowledge and research. I have therefore taken advantage, as, of old, did the heralds in their visitations, of information that has been freely and courteously given me by the chiefs and scions of families, derived from their private papers, traditions, and genealogies. The law of England admits as evidence the declarations of members of a family regarding their near relations, and here we have that evidence most largely contributed. Occasionally inaccurate information may be furnished; but this exception to the general rule is not of frequent occurrence. The statements of pedigree thus subjected to the public eye challenge inquiry, and if there be error, either inadvertent or wilful, that error will be sure some day or other to be detected and set right. The result of such criticism which, indeed, I invite, cannot but enhance in the future the value of the work.

With respect to the arms attached to the memoirs, those only that I can vouch for are printed in ordinary type; the remainder of the arms, printed in italics, though actually in use, are, I regret to say, borne without authority, and are for the most part mere assumptions of the armorial bearings of families resident in England, Ireland, and Scotland, with whom no relationship is proved.

I venture to call the special attention of my readers to the very complete index of both volumes which I have placed at the end of this book. It contains the names and addresses of those Colonial gentlemen to whom reference is made or whose pedigrees are given.

May I acknowledge my deep debt of gratitude to all those, including Mr. A. A. Heron, who have helped in my task? I wish I could tender to each one my thanks, but the list is so formidable as to preclude the possibility of this. My first thanks are, however, due to the heads of families, who have one and all given me every assistance in their power. To none of the able genealogists who have collaborated with me, am I more indebted than to Mr. E. M. Chadwick, of Toronto, who has so generously allowed me to make full use of his indefatigable researches concerning Ontarian families.

I should not have been able, however, to carry this undertaking to a successful issue, were it not for the heraldic and genealogical skill and knowledge of my brother, Mr. H. Farnham Burke, the Somerset Herald, of Her Majesty's College of Arms, whom I have consulted on every point of difficulty.

Many pedigrees, which have not been completed in time for insertion in these pages, will be included in a future volume, upon which I am now engaged. Need I add how happy I shall be to give my best attention to all communications and letters relating to family story in the Colonies, and to afford my correspondents every assistance in my power in the further elucidation of their pedigrees?

MALISE (a minor in 1421) s. his mother as Earl Palatine of Strathern, but was deprived of the Earldom by JAMES I, in 1427, under pretence that it was a male fief. The King then conferred it on his aged uncle, Walter, Earl of Athol, by charter, 22nd July, 1427, and on 6th September, 1427, erected the lands of Craynis, etc., into the Earldom of Menteth (or Monteith), and gave it to Malise, and the heirs male of his body, failing which to return to the Crown. The Earl went to England, 9th December, 1427, as a supplementary hostage in place of Robert Erskine, and was not released till 17th June, 1453, when he was ordered to be liberated out of the Castle of Pontefract, Alexander, his son and heir, surrendering himself as a hostage in his stead, and the Earl of Douglas and Lord Hamilton becoming sureties for his return in the event of Alexander dying or escaping. Malise, Earl of Menteth, d. before 17th May, 1491, when Marioun, Countess of Menteth, John of Drummond, her spouse, and John, Lord Drummond, appeared as pursuers in a civil cause, and the deceased Malise, Earl of Menteth, is mentioned, also Alexander, then Earl of Menteth. He m. Marion, eldest daughter of George, fifth Lord SETON, and was killed in a scuffle with the tutor of Appin in October, 1547,* having by her (who m. secondly, John, tenth Earl of Sutherland) had issue,

II. George, of Rednoch, whose son,

The elder son,

WILLIAM GRAHAM, SEVENTH EARL OF MENTETH, or MENTEITH, b. 1589, s. his father in December, 1598, and was served heir to him 7th August, 1610. He m. 1611 (contract dated 30th January, 1610–11) Agnes, daughter of Patrick, seventh Lord Gray. He was constituted in August, 1628, Chief Justice General of Scotland, and in the November following, an extraordinary lord of session; and in 1629, was appointed President of the Privy Council. On the 25th May, 1630, he was served heir of David Stewart, Earl of Strathern, of Patrick Graham, Earl of Strathern, and of Malise, Earl of Menteith. Standing high in the royal favour of CHARLES I, he had charters of various lands and baronies from 1626 to 1632, amongst which was a charter of the lands and baronies of Airth. He obtained the title of Earl of Strathern by patent, July, 1631, being styled Earl of Strathern and Menteith, &c. The fable, generally credited at the time, but clearly disproved by the actual dispensation found at the Vatican, concerning the validity of the first marriage of King ROBERT II and Elizabeth Mure caused King CHARLES I and his ministers considerable uneasiness, enhanced by the Earl's pretensions, for in his service for the Earldom of Strathern, while solemnly renouncing his claim to the Crown, he reserved the right of his blood, which he incautiously asserted to be "the reddest in Scotland." The King, on the strong remonstrances of his ministers and Sir William Drummond, of Hawthornden, ordered a law form to be gone through to cancel the Earl's retour and patent, and the Court did accordingly set them aside, and deprived him of his patent not only of the Earldom of Strathern, but also that of Menteith, 22nd March, 1633. Thus stripped of his honours, the King was pleased to confer by patent (dated 21st January, sealed 28th March, 1633) the title of EARL OF AIRTH, annexing to the same the Earldom of Menteith, with precedence from the date of the original patent of that honour, namely 6th September, 1428, to him and to his heirs. His lordship was about the same time deprived of his public offices and retired to his castle in the Loch of Menteith, where he d. before 26th September, 1662, having had with other issue,

The melancholy fate of this gallant young cavalier, and the singular circumstances attending the birth and history of his murderer (who was pardoned by Parliament in 1645), are the facts on which Sir Walter Scott has founded his beautiful "Legend of Montrose." Lord Kilpont, thus dying in the lifetime of his father, left issue,

This is an old yeoman family owning land at Morton in Craven, co. York, since 1530, and they still retain a small freehold property there which justifies their claim to a vote in the West Riding of Yorkshire for nearly four hundred years. John Beanlande was a landowner, near Wynchcombe, temp. HENRY III. The last of his name, Matthew Beanlande, held a knight's fee, in Perschenet and Herkedestone, co. Hereford, temp. HENRY VI. It is presumed that a member of the family removed to Yorkshire during the Wars of the Roses, and settled in Craven. MATTHEW BEANLANDE had two sons,

From 1874 to 1881, as a member of the council of the Royal Colonial Institute, he assisted Sir Frederick Young in his work of Honorary Secretary to the society before it was in a position to maintain a paid staff. He was the first to propose the annexation of Eastern New Guinea in a letter addressed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies in 1874. Besides many papers and articles he published in 1878, his Early History of the Colony of Victoria, in two vols., and in 1894, Federal Britain, or the Unity and Federation of the Empire.

Lineage.

This family is of Huguenot origin, and can be traced amongst the nobility of Languedoc, as far back as the twelfth century. It was the senior and is now the only branch represented in the male line, of the very ancient family of "De la Cour," originally "de Curia" of the Cevennes. Dalmace de la Cour, or Dalmacius de Curia is mentioned in 1113. Guillaume de la Cour lived at the Château d'Esparon, on a commanding eminence, near Aulas in 1264. Only one link is wanting in the chain of pedigree between him and Bernard, with whom the unbroken line begins.

GUILLAUME DE LA COUR, of ancient and noble lineage in the province of Languedoc (son of BERNARD DE LA COUR, of Le Plan, near Aulas, by his wife Sauxie, and whose will is dated 2nd January, 1460), m. 23rd January, 1466, Flora Réal, and d. (will dated 2nd April, 1502) leaving a son,

JEAN DE LA COUR, who in 1480 proved the nobility of his ancestors, m. (wife called Noble Aurable) and d. (will dated 24th October, 1544) leaving a son,

ANDRÉ DE LA COUR, Seigneur de la Billière, first so styled, m. Jeanne, daughter of Jean DE MARDAJORS, Seigneur d'Aleyrac et Desplantière, and d. (will dated 13th July, 1578), leaving a son,

FULCRAND DE LA COUR m. 17th June, 1582, Liette DE TARRON, and d. (will dated 30th March, 1637, in which he declared himself a Protestant) leaving with other issue [from one of whom Pierre, sprang a junior branch (now extinct), of Montcamp, in France], a son,

ANDRÉ DE LA COUR, m. 9th January, 1611, Jeanne DE BILANGES, and had (with a younger son, Pierre, Seigneur de la Gardiolle; b. 29th November, 1624, who d. a Huguenot refugee, in England), PAUL, of whom presently.

André de la Cour's will is dated 30th August, 1661. His son,

PAUL DE LA COUR, styled Seigneur de la Gardiolle, m. 22nd November, 1642, Claude, daughter of Henri de VISSEC, Sieur de Pradines, d. in the camp before Lerida, in 1646, leaving a son,

CHARLES DE LA COUR, Seigneur de la Billière, m. 7th November, 1664, Françoise, daughter of Etienne DE QUATREFAGES, of Breau, near Aulas, from which family was descended the eminent French naturalist, now deceased. Charles and his uncle, Pierre de la Gardiolle, obtained 27th September, 1680, a judgment, confirmed by LOUIS XIV, declaring them to be of noble birth. They had to furnish proofs that the family had been noble for two hundred years. The original judgment is at Montpellier in the Archives of the Department of Herault, Serie B., Register No. 50, fol. 143. Charles and his uncle were members of the General Assembly of the Reformed Churches of the Cevennes, at Colognac, in 1683, but on the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, the former abjured, and having taken part against his former co-religionists in the war of the Camisards, was shot by an assassin, 22nd April, 1704, near his house at Aulas. His uncle Pierre fled soon after the revocation of the Edict, to England, and d. in London s. p. 3rd October, 1705, having m. Susanne DE ROUSSET. Charles at his decease left four sons,

I. Paul, b. 8th October, 1667, Lieutenant in Marton's Regiment, 1696, fought under WILLIAM III in Ireland and the Netherlands, went out to the Mediterranean in Sir Cloudesley Shovel's Fleet in 1703, and took part in an attempt to communicate with the persecuted Cevennois who were in arms. He was Captain in Colonel Dalzell's regiment, 1709, serving with it and being wounded at Tortosa in Spain. He retired as a Major with a pension, and d. unm. 1736.

II. PIERRE, of whom presently.

III. François, b. 1672, a French officer, highly distinguished himself, and was killed at the siege of Turin in August, 1706.

IV. Charles, b. 1676, d. at the siege of Mantua in 1702. He and his brother had fought under Marshal Villray, in the regiment of Brisse.

The second son,

PIERRE DE LA COUR, b. in France, 29th June, 1669, was the first English member of the family, being naturalized by Act of Parliament, 1701. He fought under WILLIAM III, in Ireland and the Netherlands, and was Ensign in Marton's Regiment, and in 1703 he was chosen by the Duke of Schomberg as a Cornet in his proposed regiment of Dragoons, for service in Portugal, which was partially raised and then countermanded by Queen Anne's Government. In 1705, he obtained a Commission now in possession of his descendants, signed by Anne and Ruvigny, Earl of Gallway, the famous Huguenot General, as Captain in Viscount Mountjoy's Regiment of Foot, with which he served in Spain, also another in the same officer's regiment of Dragoons, dated 1715–16. He m. at St. Benet's, Paul's Wharf, 3rd February, 1708, Marque Françoise REYNAUD, of a Huguenot family, and d. (will proved 1746) leaving by her, who d. 1748, with other issue, two sons,

I. PAUL, of whom presently.

II. Peter, b. 30th May, 1725, Major 92nd Regiment, d. unm. 4th June, 1800.

The elder son,

PAUL DE LABILLIÈRE, b. 15th June, 1715; a letter of his father's dated 8th January, 1745, mentions that he had been for a time a colonist at Charleston, Carolina, had been prisoner of war at Barcelona, and had visited his cousin in the old family home in the Cevennes. He m. in London, 5th March, 1753, Martha BRUGUIÈRE, who survived till 1818, and d. leaving with several other children, a son,

PETER DE LABILLIÈRE, b. 25th July, 1766, m 31st August, 1793, Susanna BOAKE, and d. in Victoria 24th February, 1847, having by her (who d. 28th November, 1837), had with other issue, none of whom married, a son,

CHARLES EDGAR DE LABILLIÈRE, m. at St. Mark's, Dublin, 4th July, 1839, Hannah, daughter of John Hamilton BALLE, whose father, Captain Samuel Balle, R.N., was a junior officer in the "Monmouth," in the famous sea-fight of 1758, when she captured the "Foudroyant." They went to Australia, accompanied by his father in "the Westminster," the second ship that ever sailed direct to Port Phillip from England, and arrived there in December, 1839. He bought the sheep station called "Lovely Banks," but changed its name to "Yallock Vale." It was on the Parwan Creek, about ten miles from Bacchus' Marsh and Ballan, and belonged to Messrs. Hawkey, and had, since the foundation of Port Phillip settlement in 1835, had two owners, Captain Blackney and James Simpson, the first police magistrate appointed to Melbourne. Charles Edgar de Labillière was made a magistrate of New South Wales, when Victoria was only the Port Phillip District of that colony, and was present, when Mr. Latrobe was sworn as its first Governor, also at the dinner given to him on that occasion at the Melbourne Club, of which Mr. C. E. de Labillière was for many years a member. He was, for some time before the appointment of a paid magistrate, Chairman of the Bench at Bacchus Marsh, and was returning officer for the West Bourke, at the first General Election, under responsible Government in 1856. In 1859 he sold the sheep run at Yallock Vale and the land he had purchased there, and returned to England, for a time, travelling about, and finally settled in London, where he d. 2nd November, 1870, leaving by his wife, who d. 23rd October, 1880, an only child,

FRANCIS PETER DE LABILLIÈRE, the subject of this memoir.

* Note.—This notice of the English line of the family would be incomplete without further mention of the French branches. The junior ones of de Montcamp and du Viala (see their pedigree in D'Hozier's Armorial Général, Reg., VI) became extinct in the male line many years ago. On the death of Charles de la Cour, Seigneur de Labillière, his two eldest sons, being Huguenot refugees in England, his third son Francis de la Cour de la Gardiolle, became head of the family in France and possessed of the land, held from time immemorial to the present day, by them at Aulas, from which place their residence was, about the time of his death, removed to their present house at Vigan, about a mile distant. Separation, difference of religion, and the fact of fighting on opposite sides, never interfered with the affection of the four brothers. On the peace of Ripwick, the two who were with the English Army and the two in the French Army passed two or three days at Brussels; this, their only meeting, being touchingly recorded in their letters, which still exist. When killed at the siege of Turin in 1706, Francis left a young widow, Françoise d'Aiglepierre, of Saline, and an infant son, Charles Desiré, whose son Charles Philibert, was Lieutenant in the regiment of Dauphiné at the battle of Rosback, about which he wrote some letters, which have been printed for private circulation (Copy, British Museum). He rose to be a Colonel of his regiment, which became known as the 38th; at the Revolution, the family lost the pension which had been conferred on his grandfather for his services. His son, Louis Marie de la Cour de la Gardiolle was the last man of the family in France. His career in the French Navy was closed when he was a young officer, by his being made a prisoner of war on his ship "La Sérieuse" being captured at the Battle of the Nile. He wrote some letters describing the movements of the French Fleet, from its departure from Toulon to its destruction by Nelson, which have been printed for private circulation (Copy, British Museum). He lived at Vigan, and d. leaving by his wife an only daughter Marie Amelie (who d. 7th March, 1888), the only representative of the de la Gardiolle branch, m. Charles Louis Auguste, Baron de Cabiron, who d. 22nd April, 1891. Their only daughter, Marie de Cabiron, is now the only descendant of this branch of the family in France.

Lineage.

The most remote ancestor of this family that can be traced with certainty is JOHN WILLIAMS of Coate, in the parish of Bampton, co. Oxford, and formerly of Aston, in the same parish, who was living 1642. There were, however, persons of the name of WILLIAMS living in the parish of Bampton, in the reign of ELIZABETH, as appears from the records of the Consistory Court, at Oxford. The family tradition is that they came from the county of Brecon, and settled in Oxfordshire, having been driven from Wales by religious persecution. If this is true it would probably refer to some earlier period than Laud's persecution of the Puritans, as it seems certain that the family were settled in Oxfordshire before that time. JOHN WILLIAMS, the South Sea Missionary and explorer who was martyred at Erromanga, and Mr. LEADER, the Royal Academician (who changed his name from WILLIAMS to LEADER), trace a common origin with Mr. Justice Williams.

JOHN WILLIAMS, of Coate, in the parish of Bampton, co. Oxford, purchased leasehold land at Coate by indenture dated 1st May, 1670; was referred to as "Black Williams" in a public book called "the Book of the Sixteens," belonging to the landowners of Aston and Coate in 1668, and was stated to be commonly called "Black John Williams," in a lease dated 28th September, 1670. (Administration of his estate was granted to his widow, Anne Williams, 7th November, 1678, by the Consistory Court at Oxford). He had issue, a son,

Lineage.

The MARRYAT family trace their descent from one of three knights, who came out of Brittany at the period of the Conquest, and settled in England, where their name is frequently to be found mentioned, spelt in many various ways since that time.

THOMAS DE MARRYAT, who, under John Champernon, joined a band of one hundred gentlemen, raised by permission of Queen ELIZABETH, to serve with the Huguenots under Admiral Coligny He escaped the massacre of St. Bartholomew, 24th August, 1572, by taking refuge in the house of Lord Whitworth, the English Ambassador. THOMAS DE MARRYAT fought in the battle of Ivry, 1590, which destroyed the Catholic League, and on this occasion HENRY IV of France allowed all the officers who fought that day under his banner the right to bear on their arms—a canton charged with a fleur-de-lis. This distinguished officer was particularly mentioned for his conduct at the defence of Trinidad Castle, attached to the fortress of Rosas, against a whole French army, 1,000 of whose picked men were completely repulsed by eighty of the British, supported by an equal number of Spaniards, on the occasion of an assault made by the former, 30th November, 1808 (vide Gazette, 1809, p. 307). He was present in the memorable attack made upon the French shipping in Aix Roads, 11th April, 1809. On 30th September, 1811, we find him earning the general admiration of the ship's company, and the high approval of his captain, for his courageous conduct, when no other person would attempt it, in leading the way aloft during a tremendous gale from the south-east, which had laid his vessel, the "Æolus," on her beam-ends, and had literally blown away her topmasts and mizen-mast, for the purpose of cutting away the main-yard, as the only means left of saving the mainmast and righting the ship. On the morning after the decease of the Emperor NAPOLEON, at St. Helena, 6th May, 1821, he formed one of the three naval captains admitted to view the body of that monarch. In May, 1824, Captain Marryat joined in the hostilities against Ava, and for a time officiated as senior naval officer in co-operation with the expedition under Major-General Sir Archibald Campbell, K.C.B., and in 1825 he commanded an armament sent in conjunction with a military force under Major Sale up the Bassein River. His conduct from first to last was such that it procured for him the repeated acknowledgments of the Supreme Government and other high authorities in India, and was the means of his being included in a vote of thanks from both Houses of Parliament. No less than five times between 1807 and 1813 did Captain Marryat hazard his existence for the preservation of others from drowning. His gallant exertions elicited the warmest thanks of the Royal Humane Society, with whose medal he was subsequently presented for his invention of a lifeboat, described in that Society's 47th report. In addition to the productions which have rendered him famous as a novelist, Captain Marryat was the author of a work, published in 1822, entitled Suggestions for the Abolition of the Present System of Impressment in the Naval Service. He had previously invented a code of signals for vessels in the merchant service, including a cipher for secret correspondence, now in general use by our own and all foreign navies. On their being translated into French, and supplied by ordonnance to the French marine and merchant service, the king of the French sent him the Croix d'Officier of the Légion d'Honneur. He was nominated a C.B., 26th December, 1826. Captain Marryat obtained a grant of the following coat of arms from H.M. College of Arms, 20th December, 1827, to be borne by him and his descendants: Barry of six or and sa., on a chief wavy az. the representation of a Burmese gilt warboat and over it, in letters of gold, the word Ava, on a canton arg. a fleur-de-lis gu. Crest — On a mount vert, in front of a ram's head arg., the sun rising or. Additional crest—A naval crown or, thereon a flagstaff with a Burmese naval pennon flowing therefrom ppr. and an anchor in saltire sa., united in the centre by a riband az., and pendent therefrom a representation of the gold medal presented by the Royal Humane Society of London to the said Captain Marryat. He m. 21st January, 1819, Catherine, youngest daughter of Sir Stephen SHAIRP, of Russell Place, London, formerly chargé d'affaires at the court of Russia, and by her had, with other issue, a daughter (FLORENCE MARRYAT, a well-known authoress, afterwards Mrs. ROSS-CHURCH, who was b. at Brighton, co. Sussex, 9th July, 1837, and was appointed editor of London Society in June, 1872) and two sons, both in the royal navy. The elder son, Frederick, entered the navy in 1830, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, 1st September, 1845. Like his father, Lieutenant Marryat, on two occasions, risked his life by jumping overboard to save others. (O'Byrne's Naval Biography, pp. 726–7.) He was lost in H.M.S. "Avenger" on the Sorelli Rocks.

The Lords de Danzielstown may be traced from a very early period in our records, and from them directly descends the family of DENNISTOUN, of Dennistoun. SIR HUGH DANZIELSTOUN, of that ilk, accorded a reluctant submission to EDWARD I, 1296. He had issue, JOHN (Sir) his successor, and Joanna, or Janet, m. Sir Adam MURE, of Rowallan, and was mother of Elizabeth Mure, m. King ROBERT II, and was ancestress of the long line of Stuart Kings. Sir Hugh was s. by his son, SIR JOHN DE DANZIELSTOUN, of that ilk, for many years sheriff of co. Dumbarton, and governor of Dumbarton Castle, one of the Lords of Parliament who concurred in the settlement of the Crown upon the descendants of his niece, Elizabeth Mure. He m. Mary, daughter of Malcolm, first Earl of Wigton, and had (with one daughter Janet, wife of Sir Adam MURE, of Rowallan) five sons, Robert, his heir; Walter, a bold and turbulent churchman, made Bishop of St. Andrews by ROBERT III; William (Sir), of Colgrain; Hugh, and Malcolm. The eldest son and heir, SIR ROBERT DE DANZIELSTOUN, of that ilk, was keeper of the Castle of Dumbarton. His daughters, and co-heirs were, Margaret, m. Sir William CUNNINGHAME, of Kilmaurs, and Elizabeth, m. Sir Robert MAXWELL, of Calderwood. Sir Robert de Danzielstoun's brother, SIR WILLIAM DE DANZIELSTOUN, of Colgrain and Camis Esken, co. Dumbarton, acquired those estates before 1377. His direct descendant, of the late Stephen LAWSON, of Longhirst, Northumberland, of the 7th (Queen's Own) Hussars (she d. 1867); and secondly, 25th August, 1870, Florentia, elder daughter of Colonel Robert SALE, of H.M. Indian Army, and has a daughter, Evelyn Caroline.

III. Evelyn Gawler, lieutenant H.M. Indian Army, b. 1840; d. 1864.

I. A daughter, b. and d. 1835. II. Charlotte Eyre.

Captain Sturt served with his regiment during the occupation of Paris after the battle of Waterloo. He went with it to Sydney, where he was on the staff of H.E. Sir Ralph Darling, the Governor of New South Wales. Nothing was then known of the interior, by many supposed to be an inland sea, and Captain Sturt volunteered to lead an expedition, 20th November, 1828, to the North-West. Passing through the marshes of the Macquarrie, he discovered the Darling River, journeying 1,272 miles. In 1830, he led a second expedition down the Murrumbidgee, discovered its junction with a large river, which he named the Murray, and traced for 850 miles to its sea mouth in a small whale boat, taking only Mr. George Macleay (afterwards Sir George Macleay, K.C.M.G.) and six men. This daring and arduous expedition led to the colonization of South Australia, and was estimated by Mr. John Arrowsmith, the eminent hydrographer, to have given 2,000 miles of water communication to Australia. In 1844–6, Captain Sturt's offer to explore the central parts of the continent being accepted by the Home Government in Lord Derby's Administration, he penetrated to within 150 miles of the centre and discovered Cooper's Creek, but owing to seasons of extraordinary heat and drought, he was forced to retreat after enduring great sufferings and losing his second in command. Mr. J. Arrowsmith puts the mileage of this expedition from "careful measurements" at 3,450 miles, and his previous ones at 3,000 miles. Captain Sturt published accounts of his travels, with other useful information. He was accompanied on this last expedition by Mr. James Poole, his second in command (who died), by Mr. McDougall Stuart, draftsman, who afterwards explored and crossed the continent, and by Mr. John Harris Browne, surgeon, and a distinguished colonist and landowner. In 1838, Captain Sturt took up his residence in the province of South Australia, of which he became surveyor-general in April, 1839, with a seat in the executive and legislative councils. He was commissioner of lands, South Australia, 1839–43; registrar-general, 1843–8; and colonial secretary, 1848–51, when he retired on a pension granted by the colony of South Australia. He subsequently returned to England, and d. at Cheltenham 16th June, 1869, having shortly prior to that date been nominated a K.C.M.G., but did not live to receive the honour of knighthood.

Charles Gavan Duffy was educated at the Rev. John Bleckly's school in Monaghan, and made his mark early in life as a journalist, whilst still a law student at King's Inn, Dublin. In 1836 he was sub-editor of the Morning Register, published in that city, and contributed articles for the London newspapers. In 1839, he became editor and proprietor of the Belfast Vindicator, and in 1842 established, with the co-operation of Thomas Davis and John B. Dillon, the Nation, a journal that was soon to become by the brilliant talents of its founders, an organ of vast influence and power not only in Ireland, but also in Europe and America. In 1844, O'Connell and the other leaders of the Repeal party, including Mr. Gavan Duffy, were tried, convicted, and imprisoned for a conspiracy to overthrow the British authority in Ireland. The House of Lords however reversed the decision, and the prisoners returned to their homes amid a scene of extraordinary enthusiasm. In 1845 Mr. Gavan Duffy was called to the bar, but did not practise. In 1846, owing to the differences with O'Connell, Mr. Gavan Duffy and his friends, now called the "Young Ireland" party, established the Irish Confederation, seceding from the Repeal Association. After the famine of 1847, he was imprisoned with many others of the young leaders and tried for treason felony, but though four times arraigned, no jury could be found to convict. On his release from prison he revived, in 1852, the Nation, and founded the

Tenant League, which succeeded in returning in that year fifty members to Parliament, in consequence of the political union of the Presbyterians of the North, and the Catholics of the South. Mr. Duffy was elected for New Ross in 1852; and in concert with Frederick Lucas, and George Henry Moore, founded the first independent Irish Party in the House of Commons. He resigned in 1855, owing to the numerous secessions in his party. In November of that year, he sailed for Australia, where he was received with unbounded enthusiasm. The colonies of New South Wales and Victoria, where he settled, joined in purchasing for him a freehold for £5,000, which qualified him for a seat in either house of the Legislature. He was elected to the first Victorian Parliament for the counties of Villiers and Heytesbury. In the first session he was chairman of a select committee on the federal union of the colonies and subsequently passed, in opposition to the Government, the first Act of Parliament of Victoria, which abolished the property qualification. In March, 1857, he became minister of public works, and the chairman of the central road board in the first responsible government, and in 1858, minister of public lands, but resigned next year. In 1861, he resumed office as president of the board of lands and works, and the next year passed the well-known Land Act, which was however violated by many of those whom it was framed to benefit. Mr. Duffy revisited Europe for a year or so in 1865, and on his return to Australia in 1867, was immediately elected for Dalhousie, and took a leading part in the Darling Grant controversy. He was a chairman of a Royal Commission on the payment of members, and of one concerning the federation of the Australian colonies. In 1871 Mr. Duffy became Premier, having declined to form an administration in 1869. His government threw open the colony for selection by abolishing the reserves, made in favour of pastoral tenants, and the tariff was made more protective. He gained an important victory in a controversy on the border duties with the government of New South Wales. In 1872 Mr. Duffy was chairman of a conference of Cabinet Ministers from all the Australian colonies, to press on the Imperial Government the repeal of the law affecting inter-colonial legislation on fiscal subjects, which was eventually successful in its object. Mr. Duffy resigned the premiership in June, 1872, in consequence of an adverse vote. He was offered the companionship of St. Michael and St. George, but declined that honour, and was created a knight by patent in 1873. Sir Charles went home to Ireland in the following year, and was invited to re-enter the House of Commons, but not approving of the existing policy of the Irish party, he did not stand for election. He returned to Australia in 1875, and was elected by the important constituency of North Gippsland, and on the meeting of Parliament was unanimously chosen Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, and continued in that office till February, 1880. He was created a K.C.M.G. in 1877, and returned to Europe in 1880. He published Young Ireland in that year, and its sequel Four Years of Irish History in 1883, and the League of North and South in 1886, and subsequently Thomas Davis, the Memoirs of an Irish Patriot, and Conversations with Carlyle. He has since habitually contributed to the leading London reviews on colonial and Irish questions. He is in receipt of a pension of £1,000 a year from the colony of Victoria. Sir Charles was chairman of the Trustees of the National Gallery of Victoria,

SIR JOHN MACARTNEY, Bart., of Lish, co. Armagh, Ireland, and Forest Hill, Mackay, Queensland, Australia, b. 1833; m. 1st September, 1865, Catherine, second daughter of the late Alexander MILLER, of Merindini, Victoria, and has issue,

I. WILLIAM ISAAC, b. 13th October, 1867.
II. Alexander Miller, b. 24th July, 1869.
III. John Barrington, b. 26th October, 1873.
IV. Herbert Charles, b. 11th March, 1876.

VI. David Edwin, b. 5th July, 1880.
VII. Harold Eric Joseph, b. 1882.
VIII. Victor Allan, b. 1887.

Lineage.

The family of MACARTNEY is said by PLAYFAIR to have sprung from the youngest son of MCCARTHY MORE, of the co. Cork (see MCCARTHY, of Carrignavar, in BURKE'S Landed Gentry), but when or why his descendants moved to the co. Down (where we find them in the early part of the 14th century) is not known. Edward Bruce, brother of the famous Robert, King of Scotland, was invited by some of the Irish chieftains to come over to help them to cast off the English yoke and to be himself their king. The expedition failed, Edward was killed in a duel, and the chieftains who had taken part with him were naturally objects of displeasure to England and some of them escaped to Scotland, among whom was MACARTNEY of Mourne, in Downshire. Robert Bruce rewarded this supporter of his brother with lands in Argyleshire. The Macartneys subsequently moved to Galloway to lands still called by their name. There the family divided into three branches, MACARTNEY of Leathes; of Blacket (from whom the present baronet); and of Auchinleck. The Leathes branch ended in James Macartney, who had four daughters, one of whom was Frances, the celebrated authoress of the Ode to Indifference, who m. Fulke, son of the Hon. Algernon GREVILLE, and was by this marriage, ancestress of the present Lord GREVILLE, who is now the representative of the eldest branch of the MACARTNEY family (see BURKE'S Peerage, sub BARON GREVILLE, and the EARL OF WARWICK). The Auchinleck or youngest branch, ended in GEORGE MACARTNEY, of Lissanoure Castle, co. Antrim, grandson of GEORGE MACARTNEY, of Auchinleck, who settled in Ireland 1649. This George, of Lissanoure, was b. 1737, and sent 1754, as envoy extraordinary to the Empress of Russia and knighted on his return. He was M.P. for Armagh and Chief Secretary (1769) to Lord Townshend, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; in 1772, was installed a Knight of the Bath, was Governor of the Caribbee Islands, in 1775; and on 19th July, 1776, was raised to the Irish Peerage as LORD MACARTNEY, Baron of Lissanoure, co. Antrim. He was Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of China in 1792, and was advanced 19th July, of that year, to be VISCOUNT MACARTNEY, of Dervoch, co. Antrim, and was on his return to England in 1794, created EARL MACARTNEY. He was created on 8th June, 1796, Baron Macartney, of Parkhurst in Surrey and of Auchinleck, in the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, in the Peerage of England, for important services in Italy in the previous year. His last office was the Governorship of the Cape of Good Hope, to which colony he sailed in January, 1797, and from which he came back in 1799. He m. 1st February, 1768, Lady Jane STUART, second daughter of John, Earl of Bute, but d. without issue 31st March, 1806, when all his honours became extinct.

The Blackett branch of the Macartneys, referred to above, removed from Scotland to Ireland in 1630.

GEORGE MACARTNEY (son of GEORGE MACARTNEY, the last of the Macartneys of Blacket, who resided in Scotland), settled at Belfast about the year 1630. He m. Martha DAVIES, of the family of Sir John Davies, Knt., attorney-general for Ireland temp. JAMES I, and had two sons,

George, who served under the Duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugène, had the misfortune to act as second to Lord Mohun when the latter fought the celebrated duel with the Duke of Hamilton in which both the Duke and Lord Mohun lost their lives. At the time of his death he was a lieutenant-general in the army, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Ireland, Governor of Portsmouth, and Colonel of the Carabiniers. His line is now extinct.

berg, where he remained till 1st October, when he was appointed Archdeacon of Geelong. In 1852 he was given the Deanery of Melbourne and the Incumbency of St. James' parish, in that town, and soon afterwards accepted the Archdeaconry of Melbourne, which involved the oversight of all those parts of the diocese which had not a settled minister. In 1860, finding the duties of a parish minister incompatible with the Archdeaconry, he resigned St. James. In 1883 the parish of St. James was again united to the deanery, but under different arrangements. Soon after the arrival of Dr. Goe, the present Bishop of Melbourne in 1877, the Dean resigned the Archdeaconry, the duties of which he was no longer able to fulfil. He was four times Vicar-General, during the absence of the Bishops of Melbourne, viz.:—1855-6, 1863-4, 1874-7, 1886-7. The Dean was son of the late SIR JOHN MACARTNEY, Bart., M.P., by his second wife, Catherine, daughter of Right Hon. Lineage.

The family of PANTON or AP ANTON, originally from Anglesey, Wales, migrated into the north of Scotland. In 1445 Pitmethen, now Pitmedden, was held by JAMES PANTON, and remained in the possession of the Panton family until 1619, when it passed to the Seton family. Boyd.

THE LATE HON. JOHN BOYD, of the city of St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, b. 28th September, 1828, m. 4th September, 1852, Annie E., daughter of Cereno P. JONES, of Weymouth, Nova Scotia, and d. s. p. 4th December, 1893.

Mr. Boyd's father lived at Magherafelt, co. Derry, Ireland, and his grandfather was an elder in the Covenanting Church of Scotland. His family came from Argyleshire, in the 17th century, with a colony of brave Presbyterians who had resisted unto blood during the stormy period of the death of the Marquess of Argyll, and were the men who founded the prosperity of the province of Ulster, in Ireland, which it still enjoys. Mr. Boyd emigrated to New Brunswick, and early entered into political life there, and took part with his friends, Sir Leonard Tilley and the late Governor Wilmot, in the discussions, which ended in responsible government, the union of the colony, and the national policy in trade matters, the latter caused mainly by the abrogation by the United States of the Reciprocity Treaty between the States and Canada in 1866. Mr. Boyd was a delegate to the Detroit Convention in June, 1865, of the boards of trade in the United States and Canada, and one of those chosen, with the Hon. Joseph Howe, of Nova Scotia, and the Hon. James Skead, of Ontario, to speak for Canada. In the Senate he made the closing speech for the Canadian Pacific Railway, in 1881. In 1858, he wrote a pamphlet in favour of railway extension between St. John and Maine, and was an earnest advocate, in the press and on the platform, of the union of the provinces in 1867. For sixteen years he was chairman of the school board in St. John, and to his endeavours Catholics and Protestants alike are indebted for the harmonious settlement of their difficulties, and for this the Catholic bishop publicly thanked him. He took a keen interest in emigration, and visited Ireland and Scotland for the purpose of pointing out the capabilities of his province for farming. He has interested himself much in the settlement of the children sent from the industrial schools of Glasgow. He has been closely connected with all the charitable, literary, commercial, and national movements of his province, and after the great fire of 1877, in which he lost heavily, he was foremost in stirring up the hearts of the citizens to take courage and to rebuild the progressive and beautiful city of St. John. Mr. Boyd was appointed a senator of the Dominion of Canada, 10th February, 1880, which position he continued to occupy till 22nd September, 1893, when he was appointed to the office of Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, as successor to the Hon. Sir Samuel Leonard Tilley: this position he was only privileged to occupy for about two months and a half, having d. very suddenly 4th December, 1893. On the 7th December the government of New Brunswick accorded to the remains of Mr. Boyd a public funeral, which was the largest and most representative one ever given to a public man in the maritime provinces. It was reckoned that 30,000 people witnessed it. Mr. Boyd, whose mother d. at St. John, in May, 1877, had one brother, James Smyth Boyd, who d. in Australia.

Residence—27, Queen Square, St. John, New Brunswick.

Lineage.

This is said to be a branch of the MURES of Caldwell, who are immediately descended from Sir Reginald More, or Mure, of Abercorn and Cowdams, who appears to have been Chamberlain of Scotland as early as 1329, the first year of the reign of DAVID II. The name occurs, written at various periods, More, Mure, Muir, Moor, &c. The arms of "Muir of Caldwell," and "Muir of Rowallan," being then the two chief houses of the name in Scotland, are exhibited on page 46 of the Scottish Heraldry, emblazoned by Sir David Lindsay, Lord Lyon, about the year 1540. Those of Caldwell present the plain shield of the Mores, "three mullets on a bend"; while on the shield of Rowallan are quartered the Wheatsheaves of the Comyns.

The most ancient of the name on record are the MORES of Polkelly, near Kilmarnock in co. Ayr; one of whom, David de More, appears as witness to a charter of Alexander II. The direct male line of Polkelly becoming extinct, the estate passed, by marriage of the heir female, to the Mores of Rowallan, cadets of the family who had acquired the neighbouring estate of Rowallan from the Comyns, its ancient Lords.

GILCHRIST MORE, younger son of Sir Reginald More, of Abercorn (one of the commissioners appointed in 1340 to treat with the Lords Percy, Mowbray, and Neville on a truce between the two nations), became the male representative of the House of Abercorn at the death of his elder brother, William. To him descended the property of Cowdams. The estate of Caldwell, in the shires of Ayr and Renfrew, he is supposed to have acquired by marriage with the heir of Caldwell, of that ilk, then a family of some note, having given a chancellor to Scotland, 1349. From Gilchrist, lineally descended,

JOHN MURE, of Caldwell (eldest son of JOHN MURE, of Caldwell, by his wife the Lady Janet STEWART, daughter of Matthew, Earl of Lennox), who inherited Caldwell, 1539. He m. firstly, the Lady Isabel MONTGOMERIE, daughter of Hugh, first Earl of Eglinton, and secondly, Christian, daughter of Ninian, Lord Ross, of Hawkhead, and had (with younger children) two sons,

i. John (Sir) of Caldwell, m. Janet KENNEDY, of Bargeny, and was slain 10th September, 1750, by the Cunninghames, of Aikett, and Raeburne, of that ilk. He had three sons, William, James, and

Robert (Sir), of Caldwell, heir to his father; m. firstly, Elizabeth, daughter of KINCAID, of that ilk; and secondly, Barbara, daughter of Sir George PRESTON, of Valleyfield, and relict of Robert, Lord Sempill, by whom he left a daughter, m. Sir William HAMILTON, Bart., of Preston. About 1610, the lands of Thornton, near Kilmarnock, long in possession of the family, were alienated to a cadet, founder of the House of MURE of Thornton, the male line of which becoming extinct 1701, in the person of Sir Archibald Mure, Lord Provost of Edinburgh, the estate passed by his heir female to John Cunninghame, of Caddel. By his first wife, Sir Robert had two sons, John, who d. s. p., and James, who m. Margaret, daughter of Sir William MURE, of Rowallan, and left at his death, v. p., four sons and as many daughters; the elder son, Robert, successor to his grandfather, m. Jean, daughter of Uchtred KNOX, of Ramphorlie, and, it seems, fell in battle about 1640, having had with a daughter (Euphemia, m. her kinsman, William MURE, of Glanderstown), three sons, successively, of Caldwell, the youngest of whom, WILLIAM, of Caldwell, m. 1655, Barbara, daughter of Sir William CUNNINGHAME, of Cunninghamehead. This laird was attainted for joining the Covenanters, fled to Holland, and d. in exile. His estates on forfeiture were granted to the celebrated General Dalzell. His lady was imprisoned with two of her daughters, in Blackness Castle, and underwent much cruel persecution. Of Caldwell's three daughters, Jane, the elder, m. Colonel John ERSKINE, of Car-

WILLIAM MURE, of Glanderstown, who m. his kinswoman, Euphemia MURE, of Caldwell, before-mentioned, and had issue,

The TENNYSONS, TENNISONS or TENISONS, are a family of great antiquity in the Seignory of Holderness, in Yorkshire. In the year 1343, JOHN TENNISON, of Paulflete, charged certain persons with forcibly taking away of his goods and chattels to the value of £40, equivalent to about £600 of our present money (see PLANTAGENET HARRISON'S Notes from the Coram Rege Rolls). In 1490, the principal person of the name in the seignory was,

WILLIAM TENYSON, of Ryhill, whose will is dated 15th September, 1528, and is extant at York. By it he desires to be buried at Skeklyng (i.e. Burstwick), and leaves, as was customary at the time, bequests to the high altar; to "Our Lady's" lights; to the church of Paulflete, the parish his ancestors dwelt in, &c. He d. before 30th September, 1528, leaving by Beatrice, his wife, a son and two daughters,

He was nominated and recommended in 1583, by Queen ELIZABETH, for the next vacant Fellowship, but the Fellows deprecated the restraint put upon them in regard to the election, objecting to Tenison on account of his "affluence," and that his disposition was "neither quiet nor humble," as that of Fellows should be. He was, however, duly elected, and admitted 9th October, 1589. He was presented to the rectory of Downham, in the diocese of Ely, in 1596, and he actively administered the parish till 1639, when it would appear he retired. The first of the name that appears on record is GILBERT DE HEMMEHERST, who is placed on the Pipe Roll of the 15th HENRY III, A.D. 1230.

The next is ROGER DE HEMEHURST, who is mentioned in a deed of which a copy is preserved in the College of Arms, London, and placed upon the pedigree of the family of Amherst, attested by Camden.

His descendant, Walter, who is mentioned in the above deed, appears upon the Subsidy Roll, 1st EDWARD III, 1327, as Walterus de Emherst; also on the roll of 12th EDWARD III, 1338, again in the 14th EDWARD III, as Walterus de Hamherst, in 15th EDWARD III, as Walter de Hamherst; again in the 21st EDWARD III, 1347, as Walterus de Emherst, and in the second moiety of the roll as Walterus de Hemherst; in the next year, 22nd EDWARD III, 1348, the name of Johanna Hammherst, most probably his widow, appears, as his name does not occur upon that or any subsequent roll.

In the 25th EDWARD III, 1351, appears the name of Johannes de Amherst; in the roll also appears Galfridus Judd and Robertus Bouregge. With these families it appears the Amhersts afterwards intermarried; and the lands called Juddy's lands are handed down by many of the early wills, and descended to the East Farleigh branch.

In the next year, 1352, appear John Amherst and William Amherst in connection with the heirs of Galfridus Judd and Robert Bouregge.

In the 46th EDWARD III, 1372, appears Isabell Amherst, most probably widow of John and mother of William Amherst. The names of the payers of the subsidies are not entered upon the subsequent rolls, the amount for each district only being given. The pedigree alluded to as attested by Camden, begins with JOHN AMHERST, of Amherst, in the parish of Pembury, near Tunbridge, Kent (most probably the son of William and grandson of John), who was living in the 22nd RICHARD II, 1399, and left a son and heir, THOMAS, whose son and heir, THOMAS, appears upon record in 1433 as one of the chief persons in the district; he d. 1460, possessed, as appears by his will, dated 1459, of much land in Pembury, Capell, and Hadlo, and of Juddy's lands in Judeley

The second son was

He had previously m. a Spanish lady, Donna Juana de Sâ, and about the end of his life removed to Brazil, where one of his wife's relations was the first governor (Capitao Môr) of Rio de Janeiro. * O'Donovan built Castle Donovan in the Hills, three miles north of Dromoleague, co. Cork, in the north wall of which is a block of limestone, containing the memorial, "JHS MARIA. DOD. IC. 1626. DOC.," in raised letters two and a half inches long. The castle is still standing, though much dilapidated, and has ninety-two steps leading to the battlements.

The senior line, the ARDENS, of Park Hall, co. Warwick, became extinct at the decease, in 1643, of Robert Arden, of Park Hall, who left his four sisters, his co-heirs, viz., 1. Upon this occasion, Sir Richard, in a very remarkable speech, urged Cromwell to assume the royal designation with the supreme authority. He contributed, however, to the restoration of the exiled monarch, and served for the town of Guildford in the Convention which recalled CHARLES II. Oliver Stephen Van Cortlandt, the first Dutch Governor of New York (see pedigree of Van Cortlandt, given in BURKE'S Landed Gentry, under TAYLOR of Pennington), and has issue, three sons and five daughters.

Sir Anthony was educated under private tuition at the University of Liège, and at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, where he distinguished himself at the honour examinations. He obtained the diploma of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in March, 1841; was admitted a licentiate of the Society of Apothecaries of London, in June, 1841, and became a member of the Apothecaries Company, in the same year, graduated M.D. at the University of St. Andrew's in 1846, and after having practised medicine in London, where he was physician to the Royal General Dispensary and the Metropolitan Dispensary, he left for Victoria, 20th August, 1852, arriving in Melbourne in the following December, and rapidly rose to the front rank as a physician there. Shortly after his arrival he was elected physician to the Melbourne Benevolent Asylum, appointed a justice of the peace for Victoria in 1853, elected physician to the Melbourne Hospital in 1854, an office which he held for twelve years, and upon resigning was appointed a life governor and consulting physician. In June, 1855, he was appointed a councillor of the University of Melbourne, an office which he still holds, having been for many years senior member of the council; was admitted M.D., Melbourne University, 1856, being the first upon whom that University conferred that degree; was elected vice-chancellor of the University of Melbourne in 1858, holding that office for twenty-nine consecutive years, and on the 4th April, 1887, he was elected chancellor of the University, which office he has since continued to fill. To Sir Anthony Brownless is especially due the honour of founding the Medical School in the University of Melbourne, and framing for it, regulations, which were at that time pronounced by the General Council of Medical Education of Great Britain to be as complete as at any school of medicine in the world. He has been a member of the senate of the University since its constitution in 1867, and is the senior member of that body. He is senior consulting physician to the Melbourne Hospital, and honorary consulting physician to St. Vincent's Hospital, honorary vice-president of the Australian Federation League of Victoria, medical referee to the Victoria Life and General Insurance Company, and late government official visitor of industrial and reformatory schools, and was formerly inspector of the same, physician to the Melbourne Benevolent Asylum, to the Orphanage of St. Vincent de Paul, to the Magdalen Asylum, the Industrial and Reformatory Schools at Abbotsford, and many other public institutions. He was for thirty years a member of the Catholic Committee on Primary Schools, and has taken as deep an interest in primary as he has in university education. He has been a member of several important government commissions. In 1862, he sat on a commission to inquire and report on the Yarra Bend Lunatic Asylum and the treatment of lunatics, which led to important reforms in the management of asylums, great amelioration in the treatment of lunatics, and the erection in Victoria of suitable hospitals for the insane. In 1879, he sat on a commission for inquiring into the condition and management of industrial and reformatory schools; this commission succeeded in initiating an entirely new system for the treatment of juvenile criminals, which has proved eminently successful. He was also a commissioner for the Melbourne Centennial International Exhibition of 1888. Sir Anthony has always been a warm supporter of British manly sports, and for many years kept at his own expense one of the best and most beautiful packs of harriers in Victoria. In 1870, His Holiness Pope PIUS IX conferred on him the honour of knighthood of the Order of St. Gregory the Great, and in 1883 Pope LEO XIII created him a knight commander of the Order of Pius. In 1884 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England; in 1888 the University of St. Andrew's conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D., and in the same year he also received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Melbourne; he was created C.M.G. in 1888, and K.C.M.G. in 1893.

Lineage.

The family of OGILVY derives its origin from the Mormaers of Angus, one of the seven great hereditary chiefs of Scotland, who in the 11th century exchanged that designation for the title of earl.

GILIBRIDE, EARL OF ANGUS in the time of DAVID I had with other issue, three sons, ANGUS, his successor in that earldom; Magnus, who through his mother s. to the earldom of Caithness; and GILBERT. The third son,

GILBERT, assumed the surname of OGILVY from lands so called in his possession, of which, with Powrie and Kyneithein in Angus, he had a charter in 1172. From him descended,

SIR PATRICK OGILVY, of Wester Powrie, who had from ROBERT I a charter of Kettins in Forfarshire. He had two sons, I. ALEXANDER, his heir, a quo the family of OGILVY, of Ogilvy, extinct; II. PATRICK. The younger son,

PATRICK OGILVY, of Wester Powrie, obtained from his nephew, Sir Patrick Ogilvy, of Ogilvy, to him and Marjory his wife, the lands of Wester Powrie. By marriage with this Marjory, daughter and eventually heiress of Robert RAMSAY, of Auchterhouse, he had a son,

WALTER OGILVY, of Wester Powrie and Auchterhouse, hereditary sheriff of Forfar, to which estate and office he succeeded on the death of his uncle, Sir Malcolm Ramsay, circa 1365. He had two sons, Alexander, who d. unm., and WALTER. The younger, having entered the shire of Angus, at the head of a lawless gang of robbers, in order to plunder the country, the sheriff, accompanied by his uterine brother, Walter Lighton, ancestor of that family, and a numerous posse of country people overtook the robbers at a place called Glenbrerith, in Angus, where, after a smart skirmish, Sir Walter with his brother, and about sixty of his followers, were killed on the spot, 1391. With a daughter Marjory, m. to David, third earl of Crawford, he left three sons,

I. Alexander, of Auchterhouse, sheriff of Forfar, 1403-23, who had issue,
   1. Sir Patrick, of Auchterhouse, sheriff of Forfar and justiciary, father of Alexander, of Auchterhouse, whose daughter and heir Margaret, m. James Stuart, Earl of Buchan, brother uterine of JAMES II.

III. JOHN (Sir), of whom we treat.

The third son,

I. ALEXANDER, his heir.

II. WALTER, heir to his nephew.

III. Thomas, of Clova.

The eldest son,

ALEXANDER OGILVY, second baron of Inverquharity, who lost his life at the memorable battle of Arbroath, in which he fought against the Lindsays, 23rd January, 1445, got a charter from Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon, of the lands of Newton, Herdhill, Kinnordie, Balbredie, &c., in the barony of Kirriemuir, dated the 15th June, 1434; also a charter from Nichol Borthwick, of the lands of Ladinch, &c., dated the 15th March, 1438; and a charter from William Gifford, of Balnagarroch, of the lands of Little Migry, &c., dated the 1st April, 1439; all of which are confirmed by a charter under the great seal. He had in 1444 a licence to fortify his house and add an iron gate. By his wife, Janet, daughter and heiress of William TOWERS, of Barnton, he had a son,

ALEXANDER OGILVY, third baron of Inverquharity, who d. young, circa 1454, and was s. by his uncle,

DAVID OGILVY, sixth baron of Inverquharity. There appear to have been disputes and family feuds "betwixt the twa houses of Innercarritee and Clova sen the battle of Arbroath"; but these were all at last accommodated by the interposition of friends, who were mutually chosen as arbitrators by both parties, and who having adjusted all their differences, the brothers entered into a mutual bond of friendship, whereby they bound themselves and their posterity to live in peace and amity with one another, dated 24th May, 1524. He m. — NORIE, descended of an ancient family of that name in Dumbartonshire, by whom he had a son,

In 1855 he finally left the sea for commercial pursuits, and entered political life in 1880, when he was elected to represent the Hastings and Manning District in Parliament. Since then the same constituency has elected him five times, and he now sits as member for "The Manning," a new electoral district, formed from a division of the Hastings and Manning. Mr. Young was minister for Public Instruction in 1885, speaker of the Assembly from March, 1887, to October, 1891, minister for Public Works in 1891 and again in 1894, and still holds that position. He was authorised by the Queen to retain for life the title of "Honourable" in the same year.

Wollaston.

HARRY NEWTON PHILLIPS WOLLASTON, of Toorak, Melbourne, b. in Western Australia, 17th January, 1846, m. 12th May, 1868, Mary Annie, daughter of John HARKER, of Pateley Bridge, Yorkshire, and Mary RAMSDEN, his wife, and niece of the late Hon. George HARKER, treasurer of Victoria, and of W. HARKER, of Harefield, Yorks, formerly M.P. for the West Riding of that county, and by her has issue,

I. Henry Newton Spencer, b. in Williamstown, Victoria, 12th October, 1875.

I. Winifred Mary.

II. Susannah Ramsden.

III. Dorothea.

Dr. H. N. P. Wollaston entered the Civil Service of the colony, after passing the examination, on 1st July, 1863, promoted to the fourth class 1st January, 1867; to the third in 1882; to the second in 1888; to the first in 1890; and in 1891, to the 1st division of the Public Service as the Permanent Head of the Department of Trade and Customs. He is a justice of the peace, a barrister-at-law (1885), LL.B. (with honours) Melbourne University (1884), LL.M. (1886) LL.D. (1890). Dr. Wollaston is standing counsel to the Marine Board of Victoria.

Lineage.

An interesting account of this ancient family was written in October, 1753, by WILLIAM WOLLASTON, of Finborough. The document, still in the possession of the family, states:—"It appears by a very great number of deeds that the family of Wollaston were numerous before, and in the reign of EDWARD III, at Wollaston, in Staffordshire. They were then lords of the manor, and were called Henry, William, Thomas de Wollaston. In all these deeds or most of them, the name is spelt as we now spell our name. In 1327, the family were settled at Wollaston in Staffordshire. In 1377, they sold the Manor of Wollaston* to the Aston family, and then dispersed about the country; some went to Trescott, some to Perton, in the parish of Tettenhall, in Staffordshire, of which last we are descended. A gift of loaves of bread every Sunday to the poor of that parish, is still given by William Wollaston, of Shenton. Now I suppose they were no longer called 'de Wollaston,' but 'Wollaston,' without the 'de.' They were gentlemen always living upon their estates, seemingly with the same disposition and character as at present, without ambition, so as to make much noise in the world, or to much enlarge their fortunes, until the beginning of Queen ELIZABETH's reign, 1558, when Henry Wollaston, one of the younger brothers of the family, the great grandfather of William Wollaston, at Perton, was sent to London, and there, by the woollen trade, and living to the age of 93, he became very rich. His money he laid out in the purchase of the very estates which are now in the family, first in Staffordshire, the county in which he was born, and in which his ancestors had always lived, by purchasing Oncott Hall, where he resided; then in the beginning of JAMES I's time, 1603, he re-purchased the manor and estate of Wollaston, of Sir Edward Aston, in whose family it had been ever since the sale in RICHARD II (1377), which estate with the others in Staffordshire, Leicestershire,† and Derbyshire, purchased likewise about the same time, and those in Suffolk, purchased since, are now in William Wollaston, of St. James' Square, the heir male of the first purchaser, and I believe of the family in general. Sir John Wollaston, well known in the Civil Wars, being then Lord Mayor of London, was the said Henry's younger brother's son."

THOMAS WOLLASTON, of Perton in Staffordshire, a person of rank and influence, in the reign of HENRY VII, had a grant from the crown of the office of Keeper of the Outwoods of Lyndridge, which he held until 1523.

* The Manor of Wollaston, when sold to Lord Aston, 1377, was valued at £51 2*s.* 8*d.*

† In 1625, Willian Wollaston, of Oncott, bought Shenton of Sir Richard Molyneux. The house was built in 1629.

Grey.

THE RIGHT HON. SIR GEORGE GREY, P.C., K.C.B., D.C.L., LL.D., M.L.R. of Auckland, New Zealand, b. at Lisbon, 14th April, 1812; m. at King George's Sound, Western Australia, 2nd November, 1839, Eliza Lucy (b. 1822), daughter of Admiral Sir Robert SPENCER, R.N., K.C.H., sometime government resident at Albany, Western Australia. Sir George Grey was born at Lisbon during the Peninsular war, in which his father played a distinguished part, and was educated at the Royal Military College. He was gazetted Ensign in the 83rd Regiment in 1829, from which he retired as captain in 1839. He is the eldest surviving officer of that regiment. He was employed with Lieutenant Lushington in 1837 to explore the country to the north-west of Australia, and landed at Port George 2nd December, 1837, and underwent many perilous adventures in this expedition, which he described in that most interesting work, The Journals of Discovery, published in 1841. He was sometime resident magistrate at Albany, Western Australia, and in December, 1840, he was appointed Governor of South Australia in succession to Lieutenant-Colonel George Gawler, K.H., at a time of severe financial crisis. During his residence at Adelaide the Burra and Kapunda mines were discovered, and the colony became self-supporting. Owing to his success in that colony, Captain Grey was appointed 18th November, 1845, Governor of New Zealand, at a most difficult period, when the war was raging. This he succeeded in quelling. He issued "the ordinance to provide for the establishment of Provincial Legislative Councils" on 29th November, 1848, to which the royal assent was given 22nd December, 1849, and which led to much dissatisfaction and agitation among certain sections in the colony. In May, 1852, six provinces, viz., Auckland, Wellington, Nelson, Canterbury, Otago, and New Plymouth, were created by Act of Parliament, and Sir George proclaimed the new constitution 17th January, 1853, and defined the boundaries of the provinces. In January, 1854, he was appointed Governor of Cape Colony, where he prevented a rising of the Kaffirs by his diplomatic skill. On the breaking out of the mutiny in India, Lord Elphinstone, Governor of Bombay, asked for assistance, and Sir George Grey promptly and on his own responsibility sent troops from the Cape with cavalry and artillery fully horsed, and £60,000 in specie, which enabled Lord Elphinstone to hold the mutineers in check in Bombay, and Sir Colin Campbell to go to the relief of Lucknow on 17th November, 1857. Sir George was once more specially chosen, on account of his intimate knowledge of the people and the country, for the Governorship of New Zealand, to which he was reappointed in May, 1861, in order to cope with the native troubles that had arisen in the colony. The Maori war had then commenced, and was eventually quelled, and Sir George left the colony in a state of tranquillity and returning prosperity. There had been considerable friction however, between the governor and the general officer commanding the troops, and Sir George was recalled 27th August, 1867, to the unanimous disapproval of the colonists, and amid widespread expressions of respect for the governor and regret at his recall. The incident ended in a spirited letter of remonstrance by Sir George Grey to the Home Authorities, in vindication of his administration. In 1872, he was retired on a pension. Sir George returned to New Zealand and settled in Kawau, and in 1875 was elected a member of the House of Representatives for Auckland City West, and was appointed superintendent of the province of Auckland. On 13th October, 1877, he became premier of the colony, of which he had been governor ten years before. Sir George resigned office in October, 1879, but remains a member of the Legislature. He had been created K.C.B. in 1848, and was made Hon. D.C.L. by the University of Oxford in 1854. He was one of the delegates of New Zealand to the Federation Convention in Sydney in 1891. This distinguished statesman is author of Journals of Two Expeditions of Discovery in North West and Western Australia during 1837-8-9, already mentioned, and Polynesian Mythology, and other works.

He emigrated soon afterwards, and after a short stay in the interior of Victoria was attracted to Hobart by the offer of the private secretaryship to Sir John Franklin, then Governor of Tasmania. That position having been filled up before his arrival, a professional appointment was given him instead. After holding this for a few years, he entered on private practice in Hobart. On securing a competency, he retired from professional life, and was soon afterwards elected to the Legislative Council as one of the members for Hobart. He held office without portfolio in the Ministry 1877–8, and again in 1881. In the latter year he resigned his position and proceeded on a long visit to Europe. On his return he was elected again as a member of the Legislative Council for a country district, he became Premier and Chief Secretary in 1886, and retired from public life in 1887. In the following year a vote of thanks was accorded to him by both Houses of Parliament for the introduction of salmon ova for acclimatisation purposes. Mr. Agnew has taken an active part for many years in the work of various societies, chiefly in reference to art, literature, and the natural history of the colony.

Mr. Coppin was the first actor of any standing at home to play in the Australian colonies. He arrived in the ship "Templar," at Sydney, 10th March, 1843, where his first appearance at the Victoria Theatre took place, and after a successful engagement in Hobart Town, went to Launceston 3rd March, 1845, and became actor-manager at the Queen's Theatre, Melbourne, 21st June of that year. He commenced his management at Adelaide, South Australia, where he had built a theatre, 2nd November, 1846. The large fortune he had accumulated was lost in specu'ation in copper mining. After appearing in Geelong in 1852, he left for England in 1854, and acted with great success at the Royal Haymarket Theatre, London, and after a tour in Birmingham, Manchester, Edinburgh, and Dublin, he returned to Melbourne with his company, and acted at the Queen's Theatre there. He purchased the Old Theatre Royal, and the freehold of Cremorne Gardens, which he opened 3rd November, 1856, in which year he commenced the first grand opera season ever given in the colonies, in the Theatre Royal. He built the Pantheon Theatre and the Haymarket Theatre, and the present Theatre Royal. He engaged Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, and played them in Victoria, Sydney, and California, and returned to Melbourne 18th January, 1866. He was twice elected chairman of the Richmond Municipality, acted for two years as chairman of the magistrates there, and was appointed territorial justice of the peace. He was elected to the Legislative Council for the South-Western Province in 1858, was member of the Legislative Assembly for East Melbourne from 1874 to 1889, in which year he was returned to the Upper House without opposition for Melbourne province. The two most important measures when first elected to the Legislative Council were "The Transfer of Real Property" and the English "Post Office Savings Bank," which have proved of great advantage to the colony. Mr. Coppin was the founder of the Victorian Post Office Savings Bank, the Old Colonists' Association, the Victorian Humane Society, and the Dramatic and Musical Association, and has long been a director of the Commercial Bank, as well as of many financial companies.

Lineage.

The CARVELLS of New Brunswick are of an old family of Dutch extraction, long resident in England. In the beginning of the 18th century they were proprietors of considerable landed estate at Goose Creek, near the River Delaware, not far from the present city of Trenton, in New Jersey. The Dutch family from whom they sprang was one of wealth and consideration. Between the dates of their departure from Holland and their arrival in America, they resided in Yorkshire, England, and afterwards in Wales. SIR JOHN CARVELL is mentioned as a lord of the manor of Meaforth or Melfort, temp. HENRY VIII. He was master of ordnance to that king.

LEWIS CARVELL, of Goose Creek, near Trenton, New Jersey, b. 1719; left issue, with two other sons and a daughter, a son,

JACOB CARVELL, b. in the province of New Jersey, 1749; m. first, 1770, in New Jersey. Nancy STARKE, and by her had a daughter Nancy; he m. secondly, 1784, at Frederickton, Mrs. HOWARD (widow), and by her had a son, Lewis; he m. thirdly, at Frederickton, 1790, Lavinia SLASON, of a well-known loyalist family, and by her had further issue,

III. Henry.

VII. Gilbert.

Mr. Jacob Carvell, at the commencement of the revolutionary war, was noted for his staunch adherence to the Crown, and on this account was obnoxious to the revolutionary party. In the winter of 1774-75, he was arrested by the rebels and thrown into prison, where he was kept for a long time, during which he was cruelly treated, but finally escaping, he joined the 2nd battalion of the New Jersey Volunteers, famous in loyalist annals. He served with honour during the war, and was wounded towards its close at the battle of Bunker's Hill, a bullet passing through both cheeks. At the peace he embarked at New York, with a large party of loyalists, who were leaving their homes to settle in what is now the province of New Brunswick, and landed on the site of the present city of St. John in that province, 18th May, 1783. Sometime later his property on the St. John River, above Frederickton, was swept away by a flood from which he and his family narrowly escaped with their lives. Afterwards he acquired a large tract of land in the wilderness of the North Western New Brunswick, now known as Northampton, in Carleton co., where he lived until his death in 1821. His fourth son,

JACOB CARVELL, of St. John, New Brunswick, b. 12th April, 1793; m. at Frederickton, New Brunswick, 1818, Isabella HENDERSON (who was b. 29th March, 1800, and d. 10th March, 1852), and had issue,

Lineage.

Family of Warburton.

ADAM DE DUTTON, son of HUGH DE DUTTON, of Dutton, and great-grandson of ODARD, living temp. WILLIAM the Conqueror, acquired, by his marriage with Agnes, daughter and heir of Roger FITZALURED, the manor of Warburton, in the time of HENRY II, and had a son and heir,

SIR GEOFFREY DE DUTTON, who obtained Aston, near Budworth, in which Arley lies. Sir Geoffrey became a Crusader, and the crest of the Warburtons is borne to commemorate an exploit performed by him. In the Harleian MSS. 139, p. 68, is a transcript from an ancient family record taken by Laurence Bostoke, 1572, in which the exploit is thus alluded to: "This Galfrid lived 1244, he was servynge his prince and vanquyshed a Sarrazin in combate, then begynnyng to seale with the Sarrazin's head." Sir Geoffrey had a son and heir,

SIR GEOFFRY DE DUTTON, Knt. (generally styled "D'nus Galfridus filius Galfridi de Dutton"), m. and had issue,

I. PETER, his heir.
II. Thomas, to whom he granted Thelwall, 1258–9.

Sir Frederick was educated at Stonyhurst College, co. Lancaster (a school founded by his grandfather) and at Freiburg, in Switzerland. He emigrated to New Zealand in 1844, where he devoted himself to pastoral pursuits and explored much of the country. Having declined a nomination by Sir George Grey to the Legislature, he was foremost in the successful agitation for a representative house, to which he was elected as soon as it was conceded. He was a member of the Executive Council in the first government, and was, from 1860 to 1861, minister for native affairs. In November, 1864, Mr. Weld became Premier of New Zealand, at a most critical time, and found the country in a state of war, which he succeeded in suppressing without the assistance of the Imperial troops, which were withdrawn at his instance, relying only on the colonists themselves and the friendly tribes. He confiscated the lands of the defeated Waikato tribe, and sent an expedition to punish the murderers of the Rev. Mr. Volkner. His administration opened the Native Land Courts; passed through Parliament the Native Rights Bill, introduced by Mr. FitzGerald, connected by telegraph cable the two islands of New Zealand, and established a scientific department under Sir James Hector. The Weld Administration resigned in 1865, and Mr. Weld, much broken in health, returned to England. In September, 1869, he was appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Western Australia. He there established a partially representative Legislature, an Education Act was passed, and churches of all denominations were treated alike according to the numbers of their congregations. He encouraged exploration and the construction of telegraph lines and steam communication. In January, 1875, Mr. Weld was appointed to the Governorship of Tasmania and was made a C.M.G. in that year. In 1880, he was promoted K.C.M.G., and appointed Governor of the Straits Settlements, which post he resigned in 1887 on his retirement from the Colonial Service. He had been promoted to the Grand Cross of his Order in 1885. Sir Frederick was also a Knight of the Order of PIUS IX.

Lineage.

This is a younger branch of FULLER of Glashmacree (see BURKE'S Land-d Gentry), a family of great respectability and opulence in the co. Kerry, possessing property in the neighbourhood of Dingle, the Samphires, Ballybunion, &c., long before the English settlers, under the "Plantation Scheme," established themselves in the locality. (See BURKE'S Commoners.) The first of whom there is any record was,

JOHN FULLER, who is mentioned in the Desmond Survey, A.D. 1583, as possessed of the townland of Bowlerstown (Ballybowler), and "certain lands in Ballybeg." He mortgaged Bowlerstown to Stephen Rice, 1610. According to an inquisition taken at Killarney, he and Maurice Fuller (probably his son) were seized in fee of the townlands of Ballyristin or Ballyristeenig and Ballytobin or Ballytobeenig, and conveyed them in 1635 to Teige Moriarty. That John Fuller was a man of mark at this period appears by an inquisition taken at Killarney, 18th August, 1635 (Inq. No. 59, CHARLES I, co. Kerry, Chancery, calendered by the Record Commissioners, 1818), which found that he held his lands "de Dmo. Rege in Capite, p. service militar," i.e., by Knight's service. He was pardoned, 1 JAMES I, being then of Rahinane. Barbara Fuller, who m. Richard Atkins, of Firville, was of the same family. Macdonell.

JOHN ALEXANDER MACDONELL, M.D. of Port Arthur, Ontario, Canada, b. 23rd May, 1844.

Lineage.

The clan MACDONALD, or MCDONNELL, is undoubtedly one of the most ancient in Scotland, and can be traced back to a period coeval with that of any family in the Kingdom. The first of the race from whom any authentic accounts exists, is SOMERLED, designed by Scottish historians, Thane of Argyll, but by foreign authors and charters extant, King of the Isles, and Lord of Argyll and Kintyre. Among his descendants has long been disputed the chieftainship, and many and acrimonious have been the conflicts on the subject.

REGINALD MACDONALD, son of JOHN MACDONELL, Lord of the Isles, seventh in the descent from SOMERLED, received from his father a very large estate, as appears from a charter of confirmation by King ROBERT, dated 1st January, 1373. This Reginald is stated to have been murdered by the Earl of Ross, in the Abbey of Elcho, at Perth, while heading the men of the Isles as their lawful chieftain. He left with other issue, a son,

DONALD MACDONELL, of Glengarry, who was served heir to his father in the principal part of his fortune, and became a powerful baron. He left (with a younger son Ranald, from whom descend many of the MACDONELLS, of Perthshire) an elder son and heir,

JOHN MACDONELL, of Glengarry, who m. a daughter of MACLEOD of Lewes, and was father of,

ALASTAIR MACDONELL, of Glengarry, who m. the only daughter of MACLEAN, of Dowart, and had three sons,

I. JOHN, of whom presently.

III. Æneas, from whom came the House of Shaen.

The eldest son,

JOHN MACDONNELL, of Glengarry, m. a daughter of LOCHIEL, chief of the CAMERONS, and was father of,

ALEXANDER MACDONNELL, of Glengarry, who m. Margaret, daughter of Celestine de Insulis, and heiress of her brother, Sir Donald MACDONELL, of the Isles, and granddaughter and only representative of Alexander, second Earl of Ross. By this lady, Alexander had an only son and heir,

He m. Margaret, daughter of Sir Donald MACDONALD, of Slate, Bart., but d. s. p. 1680, when the peerage became extinct, and the estates devolved (as below) on his kinsman, ALASTAIR. He distinguished himself during the commotions of his time under the Earl of Mar and Viscount Dundie. He was the bearer of the Royal Standard at the battle of Killiecrankie, and was created a peer by the abdicated JAMES. He m. Mary, daughter of Kenneth, third Earl of Seaforth, and d. 1724, leaving issue, who s. him. Mr. Thomas Livingstone-Learmouth, one of the pioneers of colonisation in Australia, left Tasmania accompanied by his brother Somerville, in 1837 and landed at Port Philip Bay, when Melbourne, now a very large city, was only a cluster of tents, with one wooden cottage, occupied by Captain Lonsdale, the newly appointed Governor. After landing where the town of Geelong now stands, the two brothers gradually explored the country, pushed into the interior and reached the high peak (not far from the site of Ballarat, where the rich gold diggings were discovered in 1851), which they called Ercildoun in memory of an old keep on the Scottish border, associated with their family history. The Ercildoun property, on which they established a station, was afterwards sold to Sir Samuel Wilson. Mr. Thomas Livingstone-Learmonth, who was for some time member of the Upper House in Victoria, left that colony in 1868, and returned home to Scotland, where he now resides, though he still owns some large sheep runs on the Murrumbidgee River, in New South Wales.

Lineage.

This family, which represents in the female line a branch of the LIVINGSTONES, whose titles and estates were forfeited in the Rebellion of 1745, appears to have been settled in Stirlingshire for several hundred years. The family estates are now for the most part in the hands of Mr. Thomas Livingstone-Learmonth.

HON. WILLIAM BERRIAN VAIL, of Weymouth, Digby co., and Ottawa, Ontario, and Halifax, Nova Scotia, Lieutenant-Colonel late Digby Militia, b. at Sussex, King's co., New Brunswick, 19th December, 1825, removed to Digby, Nova Scotia, 1846, where he m. 22nd May, 1850, Charlotte Leslie, daughter of Charles JONES, of Weymouth, Digby, Nova Scotia, and has issue,

II. Annie Farish, b. 15th December, 1863, m. 22nd September, 1885, Colonel Edmund Donough Collins O'BRIEN, R.E., Colonel on the Staff, S.E. District.

Mr. W. B. Vail succeeded to the office held by Sir Charles Tupper when the several provinces were confederated, and was leader of the Government in the Provincial Legislature for the first two parliamentary terms after the union, a very critical period in the history of his province, and it was largely due to his loyalty, tact, and popularity with his party, that the legislature of Nova Scotia decided to accept the situation and give the Union Act a fair trial. It was during his term of office as Minister of Militia and Defence of Canada, that the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ontario, was built and opened, where up to the present time, eighty-five of the total number of cadets, who have graduated, have been given commissions in the Imperial Army, several of them having served with distinction. The Hon. W. B. Vail was elected member of the Provincial Legislature in September, 1867; was sworn a member of the Executive Council of Nova Scotia, and appointed provincial secretary of the province on the 7th November, 1867, which office he held, together with that of leader of the Government, in the House of Assembly, till the 30th September, 1874, when he was sworn of the Queen's Privy Council of Canada, and appointed minister of Militia and Defence, which office he held till January, 1878, when he resigned. Hon. W. B. Vail sat for Digby, Nova Scotia, in the House of Assembly from 1867, until his appointment to office in the Dominion Government, when he was returned for the same county in the House of Commons of Canada, and with the exception of one short term continued to represent Digby co. till 1887.

Macdonell.

JOHN ALEXANDER MACDONELL, of Greenfield, co. Glengarry, Canada, Q.C., Captain 59th Battalion, Stormont and Glengarry Militia, barrister-at-law, 1875, Queen's Counsel, 1890, b. 26th June, 1851, m. Isabel, daughter of the Hon. John Willoughby CRAWFORD, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and Helen his wife, daughter of the Hon. Livius Peters SHERWOOD, justice of the Queen's Bench, of Upper Canada.

Lineage.

This family descends through the Lochgarry branch, from JOHN MACDONELL, the brother of ALASTAIR, of Glengarry, the bearer of the Royal Standard at Killiecrankie, whose line became extinct in 1868, and of Angus, of Scothouse, whose descendants now inherit the senior representation of the family. (See BURKE'S Landed Gentry, MACDONELL of Glengarry, and BURKE'S Extinct Peerage, MACDONELL AND ARRASS, B.)

JOHN MACDONELL, who was third son of REGINALD MACDONELL of Scotus or Scothouse, and Flora, his wife, daughter of Alexander MACLEOD of Drynoch, and younger brother ALASTAIR DHU, 13th Chief of Glengarry, and ANGUS MACDONELL, from whom derives the present chief. (See p. 658.) He m. first, a daughter of Hugh MACDONALD, son of Sir James MACDONALD, Bart., of Slate, and by her had issue, a daughter. He m. secondly, Margery, daughter of CAMERON of Dungallon, and had issue, two sons,

I. Donald, of Lochgarry, who was appointed lieutenant in Loudon's Highlanders in 1745, but joined PRINCE CHARLES STUART and was lieutenant-colonel in the Glengarry Regiment under Æneas, the second son of Glengarry. He escaped with PRINCE CHARLES after Culloden,* and became a Colonel in the French service. He was exempted by name from the Act of Indemnity in 1747, and remained till his death, one of the most devoted and trusted adherents of the STUARTS, and with CAMERON of Fassifern, Lord ELIBANK, and his brother Alexander MURRAY, was at the head of the desperate and futile effort made for the restoration of that dynasty, and in which Fassifern was apprehended and executed.

II. ANGUS, of whom we treat.

The second son,

ANGUS MACDONELL, of Greenfield, who was a major in the Glengarry Regiment at Culloden in 1746, m. first a daughter of GRANT, of Thoughby, and sister of Colonel Hugh GRANT, of Moy, H.E.I.C.S., whose mother was a daughter of John, sixth laird of Glenmoriston, and grand-daughter of Sir Ewen CAMERON of Lochiel. the Isles, quotes from the well known Scottish authority, Mrs. Grant of Loggan, who wrote, "A few such lingering instances of the old superior Highland dress continued to be seen as late as the end of the last century, one of its latest examples being afforded by Macdonell of Greenfield 'Ceann Tighe' of a cadet house of the Glengarry family, who in the latter part of the last century was celebrated for his handsome person, his courtly address, his exploits as a deer stalker, and general character as a model of the Highland gentleman living in his time. He is described by several of the old people by whom he was remembered, as dressed invariably in Highland garb, a short round 'cota goirid,' a bonnet plumed with a tuft of ostrich feather, the belted plaid worn over the trews. The House of Greenfield stood in a beautiful, romantic situation near the head of Lochgarry, on a green knoll, since occupied by the hunting lodge, built by the late Glengarry for deer stalking, of Sliabh-garbh."

* ALEXANDER MACDONELL, of Aberchalder, a captain in the King's Royal Regiment of New York, settled on the River St. Lawrence, in Charlottenburg, and built there Glengarry House, which was burnt in 1813. He had issue,

I. John, captain in Butler's Rangers, first member, with his brother, of the Legislative Assembly for Glengarry, 1792; Speaker of the first House of Assembly of Upper Canada; was lieutenant-colonel commanding 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Volunteer Regiment of Foot (which was disbanded at the Peace of Amiens in 1802); he m. the daughter of —— YATES, of Schenectady, New York, and left issue,

Alexander, major Lancaster Regiment of Glengarry Highlanders, served in the 1837 rebellion, and had issue, two daughters, of whom one survives.

Colonel Matthews, for many years military secretary to Sir Frederick Haldimand and Sir Guy Carleton (Lord Dorchester) during the Revolutionary war of the United States, 1776–83, in a letter addressed to the Under Secretary for War bore the following testimony to the services of Colonel John Macdonell during that eventful time. "When the rebellion broke out they were the first to fly to arms on the part of the Government, in which they and their adherents—not less than 200 men—took a most active and decided lead, leaving their families and property at the mercy of the rebels. I was at that time quartered at Niagara and an eye-witness of the gallant and successful exertions of the Macdonells and their dependents, by which in a great measure the Upper Country of Canada was preserved. Captain Macdonell's father and uncle, at that time advanced in years, had companies in that corps, and in which his elder brother, afterwards an active and distinguished partizan, carried arms. The sons of both families, five or six in number, the moment they could bear arms, followed the bright example of their father, and soon became active and useful officers in that, and another corps of Rangers whose strength and services greatly contributed to unite the Indians of the five nations in the interest of Government, and thereby decidedly to save the Upper Country of Canada and our Indian trade."

II. Hugh Macdonell, a lieutenant of the King's Royal Regiment, of New York, was elected with his brother, first member of the Legislative Assembly for Glengarry; was a Captain Royal Canadian Volunteer Regiment, and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Glengarry Militia Regiment in 1803; was first Adjutant-General of Militia in Upper Canada, 1811 to 1820. He was afterwards Consul-General at Algiers. He m. first, the daughter of — HUGHES, and secondly, the daughter of Admiral ULRICH, Danish Consul-General at Algiers, and by her, who m. secondly, the DUKE DE TALLEYRAND-PERIGORD, and d. 1870, he had, with eight daughters, two sons,

1. Alexander (Sir), K.C.B., general in the army, colonel commanding 2nd Battalion Prince Consort's Own Rifle Brigade, b. 1820, entered the army 23rd June, 1837, and became general, 1st April, 1882. Sir Alexander served with the Rifle Brigade in the Kaffir war of 1846–7 (medal), throughout the Eastern campaign of 1854, as A.D.C. to Sir George Brown, was present at Balaklava, Alma, and Inkerman; commanded the 2nd Battalion of his regiment from May, 1855, to the fall of Sebastopol, including the defence of the Quarries, and the assaults on the Redan (medal, with three clasps, brevets of major and lieutenant-colonel,

H.R.H. the Prince Regent, in expressing his regret at the loss which the country must experience by the death of the attorney-general, was also graciously pleased to declare that "his zealous co-operation with Sir Isaac Brock would reflect lasting honour on his memory." In July, 1781, an English fleet of thirty-four sail commanded by Admiral Johnston surprised the Dutch fleet in a fog and captured all the ships except the "Middelburg." Abraham de Smidt, with the help of some of the sailors, laid a train to the magazine, and succeeded in blowing up the ship and escaping to the shore. Lineage.

This family is of great antiquity and has not been undistinguished. The military achievements of one of its descendants, MAJOR-GENERAL JAMES WOLFE, the illustrious hero of Quebec, conferred on the name a glorious pre-eminence in the records of British renown; the legal distinction of ARTHUR WOLFE, the much lamented VISCOUNT KILWARDEN, procured his elevation to the judicial bench, and in more recent times, the poetic genius of the REV. CHARLES WOLFE, the author of the exquisite lines on the death of Sir John Moore, has added lustre to the house from which he sprang.

RICHARD WOLFE, the first of the family who settled in Ireland, went there from England about 1658. In a common pleas judgment in 1665, he is described as "lately of the city of Dublin, gent.," and in a Chancery suit, dated 12th April, of the same year, he is shown as of Huttonread in the parish of Oughterard, co. Kildare. His will, dated 7th December, 1678, was proved 27th February, following and he was buried in Oughterard Church. By Anne his wife, who survived him, he had issue, Twining.

PHILIP GEOFFREY TWINING, Lieutenant Royal Engineers, an instructor of the Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, b. 7th September, 1862.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the very ancient family of TWINING, of Twining, Tewkesbury, co. Gloucester, which lordship or manor belonged to the Abbey of Winchcombe from the Norman Conquest to the dissolution of the monasteries in 1539. The registers at Twining and those at Painswick and Pershore make frequent reference to the TWININGS, of Twining, to the year 1800, the earliest record being that of THOMAS TWINING, of Tewkesbury, who was b. 1360. This THOMAS TWINING mentions in his will, dated 1412, his wife Christina, his sons, Richard, John, and Thomas, and his daughters, Alice, Agnes, and Elizabeth, and his grandson, Thomas, the son of John. From 1474 to 1488, another THOMAS TWINING was abbot of Winchcombe. We find also in the British Museum and in the record office many documents giving an account of the siege of Evesham by the Parliamentary forces, and the trial and defence before Cromwell's commissioners of LIEUTENANT JOHN TWINING, who was taken prisoner there on the 26th May, 1645, by Colonel Massey. He was twice imprisoned and his property confiscated, 1651. He wrote a book supposed to be in the possession of the Duke of Northumberland, entitled Remarks on the History of King Charles I, Oliver Cromwell and King Charles II, in a different and uncommon view. Dedicated to the Earl of Hertford, by John Twining. His brother,

THOMAS TWINING, of Wyre, near Pershore, b. 1640; m. by licence dated 27th October, 1666, Hester, daughter of William DINELEY, of Naunton, Beauchamp, and niece of Sir Edward DINELEY, and by her had issue,

Lineage.

This family derives its name from Cailly (Cailleum) a place a few miles north-east of Rouen, and in the "Ballivium Caleti" or bailiwick of Caux, in Normandy. Here there was a fortress called "Castellum Caillei," which was held by baronial tenure, as the "Honour (or barony) de Cailly."

SIMON DE CAILLY, Lord of Massingham, Cranwick, Broder cross, Hiburgh, etc., in Norfolk (the son of HUMPHREY DE CAILLY, temp. WILLIAM I), had by Alice, his wife, two sons,

I. ROGER, his heir.

II. Jordanus (Sir), who held a Knight's fee in Norfolk, under Hugh Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, and another fee in Warwickshire under Robert Marmion.

The elder son,

ROGER DE CAILLY, temp. HENRY II, was one of the most wealthy and influential barons of his time. His name appears, in that King's reign, as witness to a deed, along with the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Constable de Humez, and other distinguished nobles of the same date. His son,

JOHN DE CAILLY, was, as appears by a trial, Lord of Cranwick, temp. RICHARD I. He was also Lord of Massingham, Bradenham, Oxburgh, Denver, Hillington, Hecham, Hildburgh, etc. His daughter, Beatrix, m. William DE BUTERY. His son,

JOHN DE CAILLY, was lord of these manors 4 JOHN (1202). He m. Margery (who after his death, m. Michael de POYNINGS). His son,

ADAM DE CAILLY, is mentioned, 17 JOHN, in a mandate to Hervey Belot, which orders "that he do not receive into the King's peace, Hugh de Plaiz, Michael de Poynings, William de Stuteville, William de Mortimer, Adam de Cailly and Robert de Clere, until the King otherwise commands. Witness, the King, at Stamford, 28th February." Adam de Cailly paid £5 to plead before the King, in the case of wastes in Bradenham Forest, during the dower of Margerie, his mother, who was married to Michael de Poynings, she being "to have only reasonable estovers of house-bote, heldge-bote, and wood to burn, by view of the forester of Adam de Kayly." By Mabel, his wife, he had, with other sons,

I. Sir Osbert de Cailli, his heir, m. Emma, eldest daughter and co-heiress of Robert, Lord TATSHALL, of Bokenham, and by her acquired Buckenham Castles and its large estates. Authorities differ, however, as to whether Adam or Osbert de Cailly married this heiress of the Albinis. Sir Osbert, in the time of EDWARD I, claimed assize of bread and beer, view of frankpledge, etc., in the towns of Bradenham, Oxburgh, Cranwich, and Hilburgh, as having been possessed by his family from the time of the Conquest. Sir Osbert had issue,

1. Adam (Sir), appears to have been by a former wife and not by Emma de Tatshall, as his son, Edmund de Cailly, who inherited Denver, and other manors anciently belonging to the family, did not succeed to Buckenham. Sir Adam is mentioned in a list of knights-bannerets, in the early part of EDWARD II's reign, giving his arms thus "Sire Adam de Cayli, Chekere de or e de goules a une bende ermine." In 2 EDWARD III, he was ransomed from captivity in Scotland.

2. Thomas (Sir), of Buckenham Castle, lord of the barony, to which he s. through his mother Emma, was summoned, to perform military service against the Scots' muster at Carlisle, 22nd August, 1308. He was summoned to Parliament as Baron de Cailly, of Buckenham, to attend at Westminster, 27th April, 1309, again, in the same year, at

In the 12th century, three brothers came from the north of Ireland, and settled in the west of Scotland. Their names were Laoman, Lauchlan, and Curarty, or Curartney. The first settled in the west of Comal, in the district now known as Lamont, from the name of the family, the second to the north of Lamont, in the district now known as Strathlauchlan, and the third settled in Bute. While representatives of Laoman and Lauchlan still possess the lands first held by them, the representatives of Curartney have been scattered. Baron McKirdy, of Fubas, in Bute, appears to have sold his lands to the Bute family some time between 1630 and 1660, and between these two dates, a younger son of his went to Arran, as the Rev. James McKirdy, vicar of Kilmory, in Arran, from whom James Purves Cook Curdie is lineally descended. The Rev. JAMES CURDIE, D.D. (Mr. J. P. C. Curdie's grand uncle), sometime rector of St. Ann's, Jamaica, and afterwards vicar of Henley-on-Thames, co. Oxford, England, dropped the prefix of Mac from the name, adopting the form of Curdy or Curdie, which is in reality the same name as Court, Courtney, etc., which are still common in Ireland.

This gentleman and his brother Paul will be remembered in Australia as having been amongst the pioneers of the Australian wine industry. Mr. Paul de Castella, in 1860, extended to one hundred acres the small first Victorian vineyard, planted in 1840, which he found on the Yering station, purchased by him in 1850 from Mr. William Ryrie. Mr. Charles Hubert de Castella, in 1862, planted the St. Hubert vineyard, which became famous especially by winning, in 1881, at the International Exhibition of Melbourne, the Grand Prix (a gold and silver trophy, valued at £1,000), offered by the Emperor WILLIAM I of Germany for the best exhibit of colonial origin. Mr. Hubert de Castella published in 1860, in Hachette's Bibliothèque des Chemins de Fer, the first popular French book on Australia, entitled Les Squatters Australiens. He also published John Bull's Vineyard (Melbourne, 1886), and gave a lecture on Australian wine before the Royal Colonial Institute, London. He was a commissioner for Victoria, at the Paris International Exhibition of 1889.

Lineage.

The DE CASTELLAS, a very ancient noble family of Fribourg, Switzerland, have furnished a number of eminent men, members of the government of that canton, ecclesiastics, and distinguished officers, who flourished especially in the French service from the time of LOUIS XIV to LOUIS XVIII, and amongst whom were eleven generals and colonels of the Swiss Guard and thirteen Knights of St. Louis. This family possessed the lordships of Villardvolard, Chatel St. Denys, Berlens, Villardin and Delley. The DE CASTELLAS of Gruyère possessed the two first-named lordships, and to this branch the DE CASTELLAS, established in Australia, belong. The DE CASTELLAS of Berlens were particularly illustrious in France, where they were created by LOUIS XV. Counts de Castella. This branch is now extinct in the male line, but is represented in Australia by CHARLES, BARON DE FÉGELY (m. to Anne CARRE-RIDDLE), grandson of a daughter of

He lived from 1365 to 1401, and appears in several documents as fidei-jussor of Rudolphe IV, Count de Gruyère, a powerful lord whose estates held some 50,000 inhabitants. Akerman.

SIR JOHN WILLIAM AKERMAN, K.C.M.G., formerly Speaker of the Legislative Council of Natal, b. at Plymouth, 16th August, 1825; m. first, 28th June, 1850, Jane, daughter of C. STANTIAL, of Corsham, and has had issue,

I. James, b. 1852, d. in infancy.
I. Susan, b. 1854, d. in infancy.
II. Elizabeth Charlotte, b. 16th October, 1855, m. December, 1878, Thomas Daniel BARRY, M.L.A., of Lismore, Swellendam, Cape Colony, who d. October, 1890.
III. Catherine, b. 1856, d. in infancy.

Sir John m. secondly, 3rd January, 1878, Emma Elizabeth, daughter of W. H. BRUMBY, of Bath, and by her had issue,

II. Conrad, b. 8th October, 1878.

Sir J. W. Akerman embarked at Plymouth in the "British Tar," bound for Natal, and arrived there in September, 1850, and is one of the few survivors of the English colonists of that early period, the real founders of the colony's fortunes. He took up his abode amongst the Dutch inhabitants of the upper districts of the colony for the purpose of acquiring a knowledge of their method of farming, their language, and their modes of thought, an acquisition which proved of great use to him in after years. In 1855, he removed to Pietermaritzburg, and turned his attention to the profession in which he had been trained for eleven years in the mother country, where he was one of the foundation associates of the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain. He retired from business in 1875, and devoted himself entirely to public life. He sat from 1857 to 1862 as member of the Municipal Corporation of Pietermaritzburg, and was mayor of that city for one year, when he founded the Alexandra Park, and carried out other important town improvements. He sat for Pietermaritzburg in the Legislative Council almost continuously from 1862 to 1892, and was one of its most active members and a leader of a large party in that house, and is identified with all the great legislative measures of those years. In 1870 he was summoned to the Executive Council, and was the first elective member so honoured. He was appointed a justice of the peace in 1863 for Pietermaritzburg, and subsequently for the whole colony. In October, 1880, he was elected Speaker, and was re-elected on four other occasions. His tenure of this office extended to nearly twelve years. He represented Natal at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition in 1886, and was created a K.C.M.G. in the following year, being the first Natal colonist, holding only an elective office, so honoured by Her Majesty. Sir John has been president, vice-president, or committee-man in most of the public institutions of the colony, including the Natal Society, the Natal Rifle Association, the Botanic Society, and many others. He has served on almost all the important commissions of his colony. Sir John started, during the war, the "Zulu War Relief Fund" and the "Sick and Wounded Fund," and succeeded in collecting nearly £8,000 from Natal, the adjacent states, and Mauritius, Perth, N.B., late Lieutenant 79th Highlanders, b. 16th March, 1849, s. his father in the Scotch estates 20th December, 1854. Having sold this property he settled in Manitoba.

Lineage.

This ancient family derives its lineage from GRAEME, who was made Governor of Scotland and guardian to the young king, EUGENE II, in 435. Graeme broke down the famous wall of Antininous, extending across the country from east to west, from Grangemouth on the Firth of Forth to Dumbarton, and called to this day Graem's Dyke. His descendant SIR WILLIAM GRAEME, of Kincardine, had a charter from the Duke of Albany, 1407, of entail of the lands of Auld Montrose; from Sir William's marriage with Mariota, daughter of Sir John OLIPHANT, of Aberdalgy, descended William, the first Earl of Montrose, who was killed at Flodden, 1513. The earl, by his third wife, Christiana, daughter of Thomas WAVEN, of Stevenson, the relict of Patrick, sixth Lord of Hallyburton, had two sons, PATRICK, of whom we treat, and Andrew, who entered the church, and became first Protestant bishop of Dunblane; the former,

PATRICK GRAEME, of Inchbrakie, was a minor at his father's death, and his mother, the Countess of Montrose, was appointed his guardian. By a charter dated 20th June, 1513, and now in possession of the family, the earl conferred on this Patrick and his heirs male, the lands of Inchbrakie, Fowlis, and Aberuthven. Original letters from the Marquis to Inchbrakie are still preserved in the family. This Patrick commanded the Atholl Highlanders and was known as "Black Pate" (though a fair man) owing to his having met with an accident by the blowing up of gunpowder in his face. He received a commission signed by the "Nobleman, Barons, and landed gentlemen of Perthshire to be colonel of their force which they raised in obedience to the King's command, bearing date 24th June, 1651." On account of his adherence to the royal cause, this laird suffered great losses in property having to sell his estates of Foulis and Tulliebelton, as well as outlawry and imprisonment, and prior to his release by Cromwell, a bond was signed by the Earl of Tullybardine and Lord Drummond, in 1654 "that the said Colonel Patrick Graeme should do nothing to hurt the Commonwealth of England nor their armies in Scotland." The only reward his loyalty met with on the Restoration was an offer of a baronetcy, and a grant of arms; the baronetcy was declined, but the grant of arms, with new crest and motto accepted. Lineage.

The old Anglo-Norman house of MARTIN of Galway, is descended from one of the officers who accompanied De Burgh, the ancestor of the noble family of Clanricarde, to Ireland, temp. HENRY II, and upon the conquest of Galway, settled there. The family, which in Geoffry Lynch's MS. (T.C.D.), written nearly two centuries and a half ago, is described even then as being ancient in Galway, is now represented in that county by two houses, of unknown seniority, that of Ross, and that of Tillyra Castle. This latter was, though Roman Catholic, by special dispensation of the Act of ANNE, because of the relief and protection afforded to Protestants, the only Papist family, recognised by statute, as then entitled to hold lands. The family of Ballinahinch Castle of which we treat, is a branch of the house of Ross, but it so quickly overshadowed the parent stock in possessions and powers, that it has been wrongly deemed the senior stem. The history of this branch, once possessed of such vast territories, forms one of the most romantic chapters in the Vicissitudes of Families. In the Book of Pedigrees (vol. x), in Ulster's Office, Dublin Castle, the arms are stated to have been granted to Oliver Martin, by RICHARD I, in the Holy Land. Passing over early individual members of the family, such as Thomas Martyn, living in Galway, 1310; Jeffrey Martin, who held lands of the Earl of Clanricarde in 1334; Thomas, who had property in Galway, 1365; Richard, who likewise held lands, 1390; Peter, high sheriff of Galway, 1498, and Sir Richard Martin, who in 1533 received a grant of "three places" in the "King's Water," near Galway, the unbroken record begins with ROBERT MARTIN, who in 1590, was possessed of the lands, now held by his lineal descendant and heir, ROBERT JASPER MARTIN, of Ross, the head of the family. He was high sheriff 1607, and d. during his year of office, as mayor of Galway, 20th April, 1621, and was s. by his eldest son,

JASPER MARTIN, who was found by inquisition, made in 1635, to have died 12th April, 1629, seised of the lands of Ross and other denominations in the West of Galway, all of which descended to his son and heir,

ROBERT MARTIN, of Ross, high sheriff 1644, who adhered to the cause of CHARLES I. Upon the conquest of Galway 1624, he was dispossessed of his house in the town of Galway, and his property in the suburbs, by Sir Charles Coote, commanding the Parliamentary troops, who occupied it. This house and the other property of Mr. Martin were granted to Edward Eyre (judge advocate of the force under Sir Charles Coote), who was also intruded into the recordership of the town, by the expulsion of the gentleman who held that office. Mr. Martin made an effort to be restored to his house and property on the restoration of CHARLES II, but without success, though he held the King's warrant under his own signature to that effect (see Journals of the Irish House of Commons, vol. i, p. 439). Robert Martin d. 1701, leaving issue,

III. RICHARD, of whom we treat.

The third son,

CAPTAIN RICHARD MARTIN, of Birch Hall, and Dangan (surnamed "Nimble Dick"), whom Hardiman the historian of Galway describes as one of the most remarkable men of his time in Ireland. He was Captain in Lord Bophin's Regiment in King JAMES II's Irish army. He had received grants under the Acts of Settlement after the restoration of CHARLES II, of immense estates in the counties of Galway, Mayo, Roscommon, Clare, and Sligo, those in the west of Galway being largely a part of the confiscated possessions of the O'Flaherties. He fought at Aughrim and other battles but received a full pardon 26th July, 1695, and on 5th July, 1698, by royal letters patent from King WILLIAM, his vast territory west of the town of Galway, containing a quarter of a million statute acres, exclusive of his other estates, was erected into the manor of Clare, otherwise Claremont. As he was notoriously what was then called a "rank Papist," the grant of this princely manor caused a great outcry, so great that on 17th January in the same year the Irish Parliament presented an address to the lords justices praying that his letters patent might be revoked, and the lords justices promptly undertook to "lay the matter before the king and do everything agreeable to the desire of the House," but such was "Nimble Dick's" influence at court that even these measures were of no avail, and, subject to bloody feuds with the fierce O'Flaherties, he remained in undisturbed occupation of his possessions. He is stated to have been the owner of the largest estates in fee simple, of any gentleman in the three kingdoms. He was b. circa 1635-8, made his will 14th February, 1730, which was proved 13th May, 1731, m. Catherine, daughter of Robuck FRENCH, of Duras Park, co. Galway, and had issue,

Lineage.

ROBERT, Lord of Breherval, Montinney, and Vassé, in Normandy, the first of this family who came into England, held, with his other great possessions, the Castle of Yvery, in the Duchy, by the service of three knights' fees. III. John, ancestor of the Barons Harpetree and Gournay, whose male line terminated 10 RICHARD II.

WILLIAM GOUEL DE PERCEVAL, surnamed Lupellus, or the Little Wolf; he held the Norman and English estates and bore the title of Earl of Yvery. Taking part with the Empress MAUD, he was in a continual state of warfare with the Barons against STEPHEN. He m. Auberie, sister to Waleran DE BELLEMONTE, Earl of Mellent, in Normandy, and daughter of Robert, Earl of Mellent, by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Hugh, the great Earl of Vermandois, brother to Philip, and son of HENRY I, King of France. William Gouel de Perceval, d. between 1153–1158. His youngest son,

SIR RICHARD DE PERCEVAL, Knt., Lord of Stawell, half of Bodecombe and Eastbury in the co. of Somerset, was a distinguished commander in the holy wars. He m. a daughter of William DE MOHUN, Lord of Dunster, and had issue,

I. ROBERT DE PERCEVAL, his heir.
II. Hamelin de Perceval, d. s. p.
III. RICHARD DE PERCEVAL, heir to his brother, of whom presently.

Sir Richard de Perceval d. about 1202, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. John de Perceval, from whom came the Lords of Eastbury, and the Earls of Egmont, etc.

The eldest son,

ROBERT, BARON PERCEVAL, in Ireland, Lord of Eastbury, Carhampton, Watton, Correville and Lyndbays, in Somerset; being nearly related to Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke (Sir Richard de Perceval was grandson to Auberie de Bellemonte, daughter of Robert, Earl of Millent, and aunt to the said Earl of Pembroke, who was son to her sister Elizabeth de Bellemonte, by Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Pembroke, her husband), was early engaged in the expedition to Ireland, although there is no positive mention of him in that kingdom before 1281 (Annal O'Dempsie, fol. 364) when he sailed thither with Richard de Marle, Stephen de Borgo, and near two hundred other knights, where he so behaved with so much valour, that he acquired great possessions, and seated himself wholly in that kingdom, making over to his brothers, Hugh and John, all his lands in the co. of Somerset. Having thus deserved so well of that estate, he received summons to the Parliament held in Dublin, 1285 (ex Rot. claus. Hiberniæ) and left issue,

I. RICHARD, his heir.
II. ROBERT, who s. his brother.

Robert, Baron Perceval, d. 1285, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT, THIRD BARON PERCEVAL, in Ireland, of Portlester, in the co. of Meath. He was a man of high consideration in those parts. In two rolls of the Magnates Hiberniæ, his name is found, and in the 30 EDWARD I, A.D. 1301, he received letters from the King of England, requiring his attendance in the Scottish wars, and again soon after a letter of credence was sent in behalf of Geoffrey Geymull, and John Wogan, the King's justiciary in Ireland, requiring him to confide in those persons and referring him, as to his conduct as to that expedition, to the verbal instructions which they were ordered to give him. He m. Grace, daughter of Thomas FITZMAURICE, first Baron of Kerry and Lixnaw, in Ireland. But engaging in battle with the Irish, he was unfortunately slain with William de Welleslie, the 22nd October, 1303, and was buried in the priory of Youghal, to which he was a great benefactor, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS DE PERCIVAL, Lord of Moricetown, in Kildare, paid ten shillings for one fourth of his services in the expedition to Sexenedy, under Sir John Wogan, Lord Justice of Ireland, as appears on the great roll of the pipe 1296, and the same sum for his services in the expedition to Athissell in 1330, 5 EDWARD III. He was sheriff of Kildare 10 EDWARD II, 1316, and in 1330. He had issue two sons,

I. WILLIAM (Sir), Lord of Moricetown, was one of the Knights who became security for Maurice Fitzgerald, Earl of Kildare, in 1347, as appears in the roll of the pleas in the court of King's Bench for that year. He had issue. From him and his brother descend the PERCEVALS of Ireland, except the Templehouse branch and the other lines of the Egmont house.
II. JOHN, of Dunbrody, co. Wexford, who m. and had a son, Simon, of Dunbrody, 1440, who also m. and had a son, John, 1373.

Sir William Betham, Ulster King of Arms, in recording the pedigree in the office of Arms, after reciting the above-named generations goes on to say: "1373–48 EDWARD III. On the Patent Roll of the Chancery of Ireland is an entry that John Percival and John Brown gave half a mark for a writ, as did also Nicholas Tallon.

"After this period, the English power gradually became weaker, and the records, both the Plea Rolls, and the Pipe and Patent Rolls diminished in size very much, so that the information contained therein throws little light on family history. In the reigns of HENRY IV, V, and VI, and EDWARD IV, the Royal Writ did not run forty miles in length and twenty in breadth in all Ireland, so that we have not the intermediate generations between this Sir William de Percival and Christopher, the first in the Knightsbrook line. Robert de Percival, the father of Thomas, and grandfather of William, is called in Lord Egmont's pedigree the eldest son of Richard, son of Richard, who went to Ireland with Strongbow, and is called a Baron of Ireland, but there is no evidence of his summons to the Parliament in Ireland in 1285, for there is no Close Roll of that year with which I am acquainted, nor does there appear on the Irish records, any entry of Richard and Robert, who are said to have been his sons. Thomas was his son, and had his estates, as above stated. There were about six generations between Sir William de Percival, of Moricetown, and Christopher Percival, the first of the Knightsbrook family. The Irish Percivals bore the spancelled horse for their arms. The Very Rev. Hugh Percival, dean of Ross, and his descendants also bore these arms, which were never borne by the English Percivals."

The pedigree of the Knightsbrook branch is then resumed by Sir William Betham, in the above-mentioned record. It may be here mentioned that in this the family name is spelt PERCIVAL throughout, but the present representative has reverted to the ancient spelling.

CHRISTOPHER PERCYVALL, of Dublin (son of GABRIEL PERCYVALL, of St. Margaret's, London Bridge, by Elizabeth, his wife, who was buried at Richmond 18th September, 1595, and grandson of JOHN PERCYVALL, of St. Sepulcre's, London), whose will was dated 14th December, 1605, and proved 3rd February, 1607, left issue, by Hester, his wife, Odell.

THE LATE MAJOR WILLIAM HENRY ODELL, of Rookwood, Fredericton, New Brunswick, b. at Fredericton, 6th May, 1852; entered Royal Military College, Sandhurst, in 1869, from which he was gazetted to a commission in the 52nd Light Infantry 30th December, 1871; promoted captain 11th March, 1882, major, 16th March, 1892. He served in South Africa, receiving the South African medal and clasp for 1879, and was mentioned in despatches. He d. s. p. 1894.

Lineage.

The ODELL family in England is an ancient one, having been founded there by WALTER FLANDRENSIS, who came over with the Conqueror in 1066, and, as his share of the spoils of conquest, received, among other states, that of Wadehull or Wahull (now Odell) in Bedfordshire. From this possession, which he made his principal stronghold, Walter Flandrensis acquired the title of Baron de Wahull, and became the progenitor of a noble family of that name who were, for many generations, summoned to Parliament by the King (see BURKE'S Dormant and Extinct Peerage). The orthography of the name has gradually changed, however, from de Wahull to Wodhull, Woodhull, Wodell, Odell, etc. In a pedigree of the family in the Visitation of Northampton in 1618, we find mention of "Nicolas Woodhull alias Odell," and in All Saints Church at Mollington, Oxfordshire, may be seen a mural tablet erected in 1656, to the memory of: "Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhull, late wife of Richard Woodhull, alias Odell, Esq." The alternate use of the two names Woodhull and Odell is also found in the earlier records of the American family, a petition in 1668 by the second son of William Odell, the founder of the family in America, being signed "William Woodhull."

WILLIAM ODELL, the founder of the family in America, emigrated to New England as early as 1639, in company with the Rev. Peter Bulkeley, who was rector of the parish of Odell in Bedfordshire in 1620, and allied to the Odell family through his marriage with Grace, daughter of Sir Richard CHETWOOD. Mr. Odell settled at Concord, Massachusetts, but removed to Fairfield, Connecticut, about 1644, where he became the owner of a large estate. He d. in 1676, leaving a will, recorded at Fairfield the same year. He had issue, three sons and one daughter. The eldest son,

JOHN ODELL, of Fairfield, was made freeman in 1664, by the General Assembly; in 1666, in behalf of his father, he joined with Francis Hall in a deed of partition; in 1673 and 1682 he received grants of land from the town of Fairfield; in 1707, he made a will, appointing his wife, Mary, executrix. He had issue, two sons and three daughters. The eldest son, ENSIGN SAMUEL ODELL, of Stratfield, was b. 16th March, 1677; in 1700, he received deed of lands from his father; in 1722, was commissioned ensign by the General Assembly; in 1727, his estate was administered on, with inventory, mentioning his widow Deborah.

He afterwards studied for holy orders, and in 1766 was ordained by the Bishop of London, at the Chapel Royal, St. James'. In 1767, he was appointed rector of St. Anne's Church, Burlington, N.J. He was prominent during the war of the Revolution for his sympathy for England, and was employed by General Sir Guy Carleton (Lord Dorchester) in many important and confidential trusts. He was joint author of the Loyal Verses of Stansbury and Odell. At the close of the war he removed to Fredericton, N.B., where he was made secretary of the province, and held many other responsible offices under the Crown. Lineage.

Eight centuries ago, GILLESPIE CAMPBELL acquired, by marriage with an heiress, the lordship of Lochow, in Argyllshire, and from him descended,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who, distinguished as well by the great acquisitions he had made to his estate as by his achievements in war, obtained the surname of More, or Great; and from him the chief of the house is in the Gaelic styled, to this day, MACCALAIN MORE. He was knighted by ALEXANDER III, 1280, and was one of the nominees 1291, on the part of Robert Bruce, in the contest for the crown of Scotland. This renowned and gallant chieftain was slain in a conflict with his powerful neighbour, the Lord of Lorn, at a place called the String of Lorn, where a cairn was erected over his grave. The event occasioned continued feuds for a series of years between the houses of Lochow and Lorn, which terminated at last by the marriage of the first Earl of Argyll with the heiress of Lorn. Sir Colin m. a lady of the name of ST. CLAIR, and had,

I. NEIL, his successor.
II. Donald, ancestor of Campbell, Earl of LOUDOUN (see BURKE'S Peerage).
III. Dugald (Sir), who swore fealty to EDWARD I, in 1296, but afterwards joined Robert Bruce.
IV. Arthur, who having sworn fidelity with his brother to King EDWARD, like him, afterwards joined Robert Bruce, from whom he obtained two charters of the constabulary of Dunstaffnage, with the mains thereof.
V. Duncan, likewise a supporter of the Bruce.

Sir Colin was s. by his eldest son,

SIR NEIL CAMPBELL, who was knighted by ALEXANDER III, towards the close of that monarch's reign. He swore fealty, with his brothers, in 1296, to King EDWARD, but afterwards joining Robert Bruce, adhered to him in prosperity and adversity, and fought by his side in almost every field, from the battle of Methven to that of Bannockburn. The king had so high a sense of Campbell's services that he gave him his sister, Lady Mary Bruce, in marriage, and granted to him and his said wife, and John their son, all the lands which belonged to David de Strathbogie, Earl of Atholl. When the triumph of Bannockburn had decided the independence of Scotland, Sir Neil Campbell was one of the great barons in the parliament which met at Ayr, 26th April, 1315, and fixed the succession to the Crown. By the Lady Mary Bruce, (who m. secondly, Sir Alexander FRASER), he had three sons, viz.,

I. COLIN, of whom presently.
II. John (Sir), of Moulin, who, upon the forfeiture of David de Strathbogie, 11th Earl of Atholl, was advanced to that earldom. He fell at the battle of Halidon Hill, 1333; and dying without issue, that Earldom of Atholl reverted to the Crown.
III. Duncan, of Menstrie.

Sir Neil d. in 1316, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who accompanied the king into Ireland, in 1316, to assist in placing his brother, Edward Bruce, upon the throne of that kingdom. Sir Colin, in 1334, assisted the Steward of Scotland in the recovery of the Castle of Dunoon from the English, which gave the first turn of fortune in favour of King DAVID BRUCE, and he was in consequence appointed heritable governor of that fortress. He m. a lady of the house of Lennox, and had three sons and a daughter, viz.,

I. ARCHIBALD, of whom presently.
II. John, ancestor of the CAMPBELLS of Barbreck, Succoth, and others. This John Campbell appears to have held Ardskeodnish, as well as Barbreck. His descendants continued possessed of the latter estate until the male heirs having failed in the 16th generation, the heiress conveyed Barbreck to her husband, Colin Campbell, who in right of his marriage assumed the designation of "Barbreck," and as he was descended from Sir Colin Campbell, father of John, the first Campbell of Barbreck, the link of the male line was thus restored. Frederick William Campbell, 17th of Barbreck, disposed of his estate in Argyllshire.

Lineage.

The STRANGES descend it is said from the ancient Scotch family of STRANG of Balkaskie, whose senior line became extinct in the seventeenth century. The Strangs of Balkaskie are mentioned in 1362, as gentlemen of ancient lineage and fair estate in the eastern neuk, or corner, of Fife, holding also lands in Tweedale some four centuries ago. John Strang of Balkaskie m. 1362, Coecelia Anstruther of Anstruther. From William Strang of Balkaskie in 1440, the line is traced until the estate was sold in 1615; the title deeds of the original lairdship of the Strangs, now in possession of the Anstruther Baronets, confirmed the alienation of the old barony under a weight of debt soon after the union of the crowns. One of the Strangs fell in 1647 at the battle of Fawside or Pinkie, so fatal to Scottish chivalry, and the landless heir of their name rose during the German wars to be Lieutenant Colonel of Cochran's Scotch Regiment. At the reformation, Sir Magnus and Sir George Strang were respectively prebendaries of St. Colme's and St. Andrew's in the Orkney Islands. Sir Magnus was also succentor of Orkney from 1544 till his death in 1565. Sir Robert Strang, the celebrated artist engraver, the son of David Strange by his wife the daughter of John SCOLLAY, of Hunton, was, it is said, a direct descendant (see memoirs of him by DENNISTOUN). Sir Robert fought in the battle of Culloden in the body guard of Prince Charles. He was attainted, and sought refuge in the house of Isabella, daughter of William Lumsden, his affianced bride, whom he afterwards married. His son, Sir Thomas Strange, was a judge in H.E.I. Co's. service, among whose sons and grandsons may be mentioned Colonel Alexander Strange, Madras Cavalry; Admiral Strange, Major Charles John Strange, R.A., who distinguished himself in the Crimea. The Canadian family descends from a branch settled in the county Kerry.

MATHEW STRANGE, of Burnhouse, who also held lands in Kilbryde and Rutherglen, Lanarkshire, was b. 1635, m. Janet, daughter of A. WARDROP, of Auldhouse, in the same county, and d. 12th February, 1718, leaving issue a son,

He was presented with the drums and colours by the King. The muster roll of the company, 1715, is in the possession of his direct descendant, Major General T. B. Strange. Accompanied by two others he discovered gold in the Rivers Wilmot and Forth in the latter year, and he discovered silver bearing copper, and silver lead on the beach at the Penguin in 1861, and continued his search for minerals, till he discovered at Mount Bischoff on the 4th December, 1871, the enormus tin deposit since become so famous. Mr. Smith was induced to allow himself to be elected a member of the Legislative Council on the 13th July, 1886, but he retired from the Legislature at the end of the term for which he was elected. He has long been more generally known as Philosopher Smith.

Lineage.

This family is descended from the ancient line of COLLINS of Devon (see Visitation of that co.), who were seated there for many generations and afterwards removed to co. Cornwall.

COLONEL JOHN ULRIC COLLINS, of the East India Company's Service, was for many years aide-de-camp to Marquess Wellesley, in whose despatches from India he is frequently mentioned. He was made resident at Lucknow for having gone on a diplomatic mission to the Prince of Scindiah, a service of great danger, and for which he was also offered a lac of rupees, which he refused. His seal of office as resident is still in the possession of the family and also a letter from Lord Wellesley, referring to the Scindiah mission, in which he is spoken of as having "displayed the moderation, the candour and the dignified firmness which ought to be the characteristic of the diplomatic agents of the British nation in India." He d. 1807, leaving by Charlotte WRANGHAN, his wife, a son,

WILLIAM WRANGHAN COLLINS, b. in India in 1779. On the 27th April, 1815, he received a commission, signed by Lord Sidmouth, as Cornet in the 2nd Life Guards, and sold out in 1824. He m. in that year, Henrietta, daughter of the Rev. Charles SHUCKBURGH, of the Moot, Downton, Wilts, of an ancient family, which traces a descent from EDWARD I. He d. 30th January, 1880, having by her, who d. 3rd May, 1861, had issue, an only son,

Burke's Landed Gentry of Great

BRITAIN AND IRELAND, being a record of the Lineage, &c., of about 4,500 Families, with a description of their Arms, Crests, &c. EIGHTH EDITION. Thoroughly Revised throughout, 1894. This edition of the Landed Gentry has been compiled from communications made by the chiefs and heads of families from their private papers, traditions and genealogies. The great aim has been to arrive at accuracy, and, in order to attain this end, every available source of information has been exhausted, and a correspondence carried on which has secured many thousands of communications from those most competent to improve and correct the work. Apocryphal statements, which had crept into former editions, have been expunged, erroneous particulars and incorrect descents discovered and omitted, and some memoirs excluded as being no longer associated with the possession of landed property. In two volumes, uniform with "The Peerage," "General Armory," &c. 2,340 pages, super royal 8vo., cloth gilt. Price £3 3s.

Burke's Peerage, Baronetage, Knight-

AGE, &c. for the present year. This Peerage and Baronetage is the only one extant which combines, in one volume, the full genealogical or past, as well as the present, account of all the Peers and Baronets of the realm. The Baronetage, incorporated with the Peerage, is complete in every detail as to the Lineage and present condition of each Baronet and his family. The Knightage has been much enlarged by the introduction of the family connections of the Knights of the several Orders of the Knights Bachelors and of the Members of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council. Precedence.—This important subject has been fully dealt with, and the Lists may be relied on as authoritative. The Peers, Baronets, and Knights, and the Companions of the several Orders of Knighthood are placed according to their relative rank; and there is given a Scale of General or Social Precedence, and a List of the Maids of Honour to the Queen, with their relative Precedence. Tables of Precedence of Diplomatic Agents; Relative Rank of the Officers of the Navy and Army; and Precedence in the Colonies, the Dominion of Canada, and the Indian Empire are also supplied. There will also be found official Lists of THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE, THE ROYAL ORDER OF VICTORIA AND ALBERT, THE IMPERIAL ORDER OF THE CROWN OF INDIA, THE VICTORIA CROSS, THE ALBERT MEDAL, and THE ROYAL RED CROSS. The heraldic department includes not only the engravings of the arms of both PEERS and BARONETS, but also the written blazon or descriptions. To this work is added a Key, or comprehensive Alphabetical List, by means of which every titled personage, and many others, can be easily traced. Nearly 2,000 pages, super royal 8vo., cloth gilt. Price £1 18s. (Published annually.)

"Has for more than half-a-century been regarded as containing a history of all the great titled families in the Empire. There is scarcely a page in the volume that is not full of interest. . . . . There is an excellent index to the work. . . . . Considerable space is devoted to the question of precedence."—Times.
