Early History Blount County Area

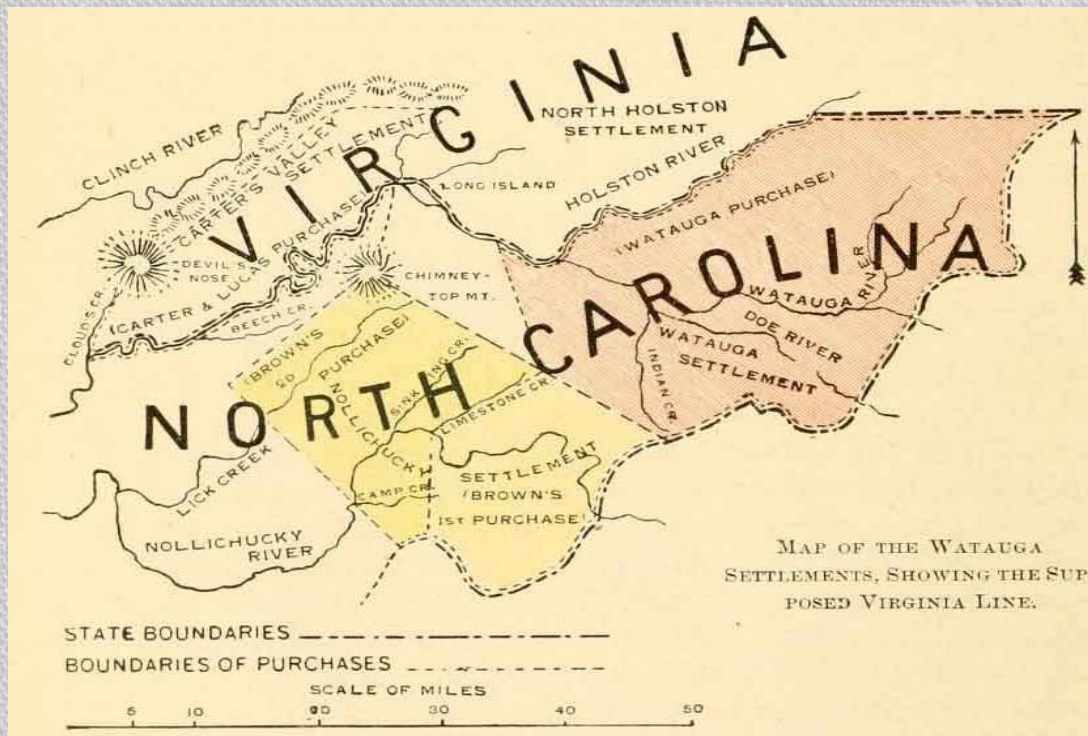

- 1673 Needham and Arthur strike out into Cherokee area
- 1730 James Adair lives with and studies the Indians in TN
- 1756 French and Indian War, Cherokees are with the Colonies against the Northern Tribes and France- Fort Loudon built to protect the Cherokee villages
- 1760 (Jan-Aug 7th) Relations between the Cherokee and the garrison break down, Fort Loudon is surrendered to the Cherokee and some of the English were later massacred.
- 1771 James Robertson plants first crop in area

1766 Frontier of the Colonies

James Robertson, Watauga

- In 1769, James Robertson (VA) accompanied explorer Daniel Boone on his third expedition to lands beyond the Allegheny Mountains. The party discovered the "Old Fields" (lands previously cultivated by generations of Native Americans) along the Watauga River valley, where Elizabethton, Tennessee later developed. Robertson stopped here to plant corn while Boone continued on to Kentucky.
- After returning to North Carolina, Robertson became involved with the Regulator movement. They recruited a group of settlers to return to the Watauga River valley. In 1772, Robertson and the pioneers who had settled in Northeast Tennessee met at Sycamore Shoals to establish an independent regional government known as the Watauga Association.

Boone and the Wilderness Road

- In 1775, Daniel Boone blazed a trail for the Transylvania Company from Virginia through the Cumberland Gap. It was later lengthened, following Native American trails, to reach the Falls of the Ohio at Louisville. The Wilderness Road was steep, rough and narrow, and could only be traversed on foot or horseback.

Watauga (c. 1760-1777)

- In May 1772- settlers negotiated a 10-year lease directly with the Cherokee, est. Watauga Association
- 1775 - The lease and the subsequent purchase of these were considered illegal by the British Crown, and were opposed by a growing faction of the Cherokee led by the young chief Dragging Canoe.
- April 1775 - With the outbreak of the American Revolutionary War (April 1775), the settlers organized themselves into the "Washington District," loyal to the "united colonies," and formed a Committee of Safety to govern it, marking the end of the so-called "Watauga Republic".
- July 1776 The Cherokee, who were aligned with the British, launched an all-out invasion against the settlements, but were soundly defeated.
- 1777, the Cherokee signed the Treaty of Long Island, ceding control of the Watauga and Nolichucky valleys to the American colonies.
- November 1777- The Washington District was finally admitted to North Carolina as Washington County.

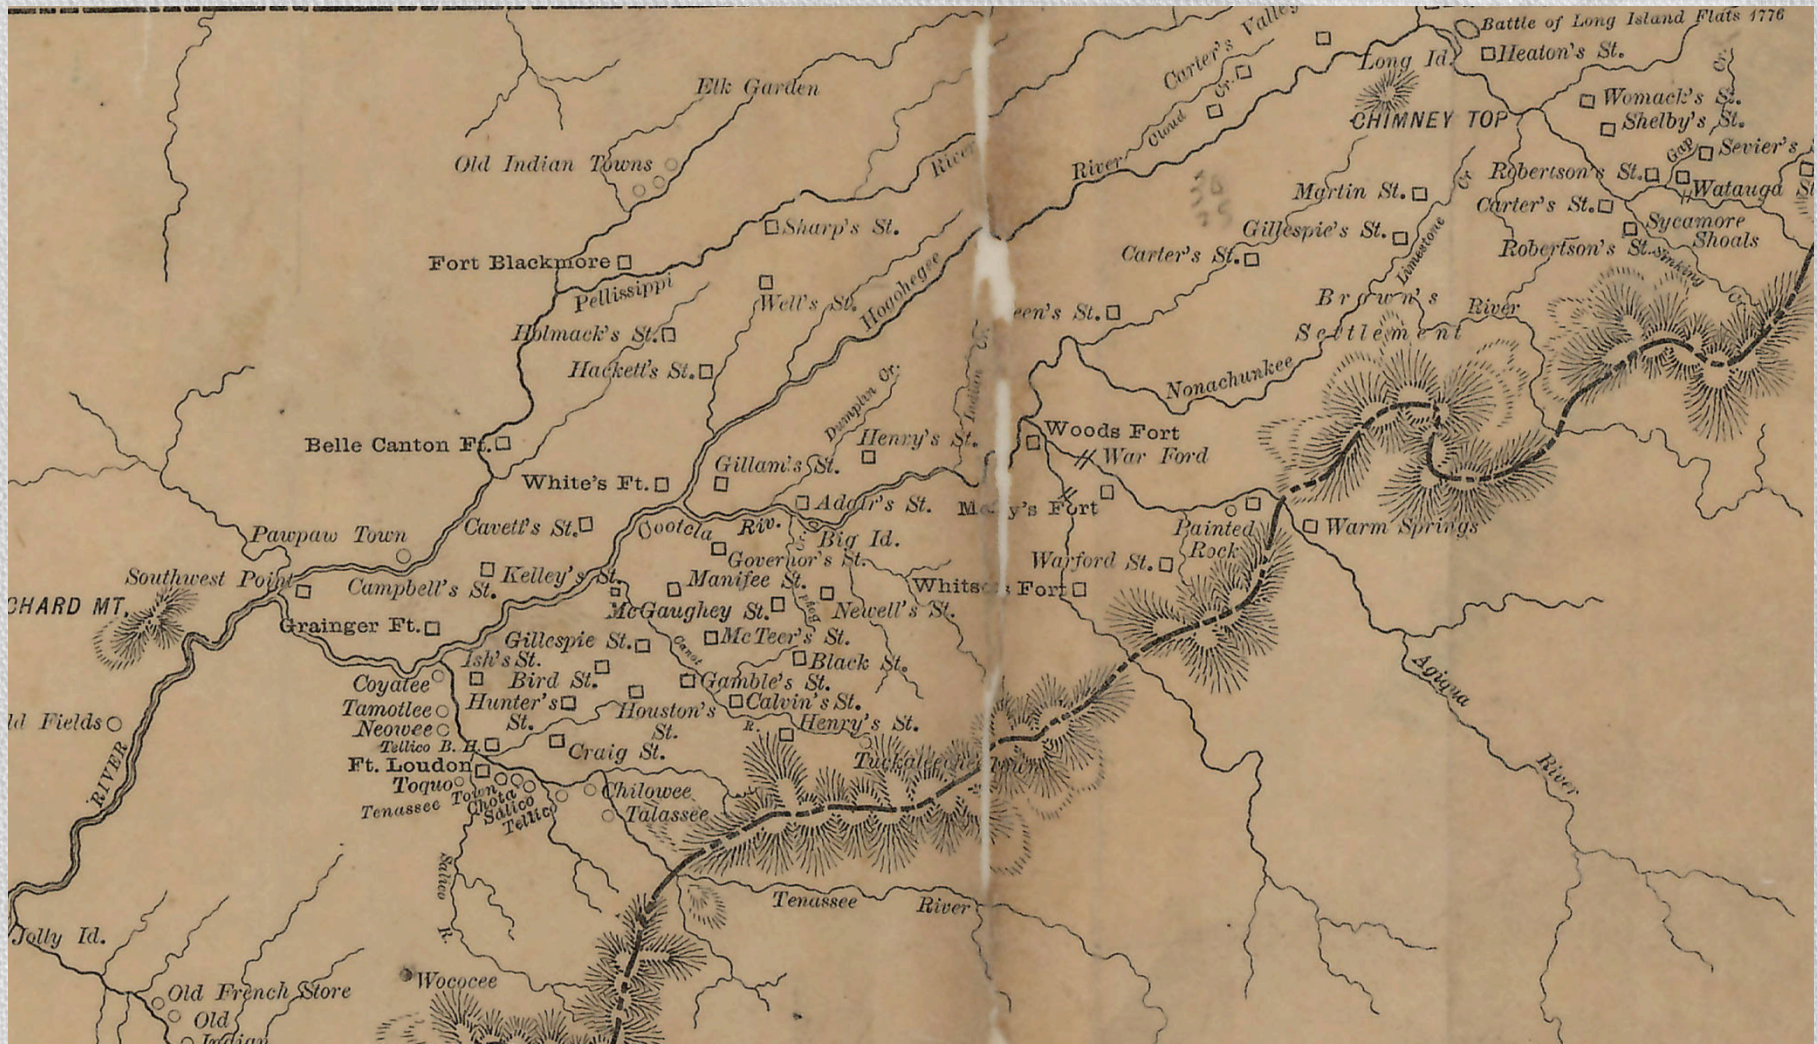

After Watauga

- Although it lasted only a few years, the Watauga Association provided a basis for what later developed into the state of Tennessee and likely influenced other western frontier governments in the trans-Appalachian region.
- 1777-1780 - Watauga groups participated in: Battle of Point Pleasant, 1774, Aided in defense of Boonesborough and Harrodsburg
- 1780 Joined Overmountain Men at the Battle of Kings Mountain (240 Wataugans under Cols John Sevier and Isaac Shelby).
- Sevier then led expedition vs. Cherokee destroying the Chickamaugua Villages near Chattanooga.

- Various interests pushed for its creation including speculators who wanted a stable government; the State of North Carolina which desired relief from protecting the western settlers; western settlers who had been trying for some time [Watauga and Franklin] to be annexed by the national government and the new government which wanted to push for actual control of lands supposedly ceded by Great Britain in 1783.

John who married Esther is the son of Alexander is concluded by Dr. John Fleishman M. on pg 19 of 'John & Esther Houston Montgomery 1719-1793' by quoting pg 661-62 of 'History of Chester County' by Futhy & Cope, 1881' where an Indenture dated 13 Oct, 1761 by John and Esther, Moses and Elizabeth, William, and Margaret Montgomery, heirs of Alexander, release their interest in 650 acres to Daniel.
